DAILY GAZETTE.

IDLE HANDS.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

Mr. Thornton came home at his usual mid-day hour, and as he went by the parlor door, he saw his daughter, a young girl of nineteen, lounging on the sofa, with a book in her hands. The whirl of his wife's sewing machine struck on his ears at the same moment. Without pausing at the parlor door, he kept on to the room from which came the sound of industry.

Mrs. Thornton did not observe the entrance of her husband. She was bending close down over her work, and the noise of her machine was louder than his footsteps on the floor. Mr. Thornton stood looking at her for some moments without speaking.

"O, dear," exclaimed the tired woman, letting her foot rest on the treadle, and straightening herself up, "this pain in my side is almost beyond endurance."

"Then why do you sit killing yourself there?" said Mr. Thornton.

Mr. Thornton's aspect was unusually sober.

"What's the matter? Why do you look so serious?" asked his wife.

"Because I feel serious."

"Has anything gone wrong?"

Mrs. Thornton's countenance grew slightly troubled. Things had gone wrong in his business more than once, and she learned to dread the occurrence of disaster.

"Things are wrong all the time," was replied in some impatience.

"In your business?" Mrs. Thornton spoke a little faintly.

"No, nothing especially out of the way there; but it's all wrong at home."

"I don't understand you, Harvey. What is wrong at home, pray?"

"Wrong for you to sit, in pain and exhaustion over that sewing machine, while an idle daughter lounges over a novel in the parlor. That's what I wished to say."

"It isn't Effie's fault. She often asks to help me. But I can't see the child put down to household drudgery. Her time will come soon enough. Let her have a little ease and comfort while she may."

"If we said that of our sons," replied Mr. Thornton, and acted on the word, what efficient men they would make for the world's work. How admirably furnished they would be for life's trials and duties!"

"You are wrong in this thing—all wrong," continued the husband. "And as to ease and comfort as you say, if Effie is a right-minded girl, she will have more true enjoyment in the consciousness that she is lightening her mother's burdens, than it is possible to obtain from the finest novel ever written. Excitement of the imagination is no substitute for that deep peace of mind that ever accompanies and succeeds the right discharge of daily duties. It is a poor compliment to Effie's moral sense to suppose that she can be content to sit with idle hands, or to employ them in light frivolities, while her mother is worn down with toil beyond her strength. Hester, this must not be?"

"And it shall not be!" said a quick, firm voice.

Mr. Thornton and his wife started, and turned round to the speaker, who had entered the room unobserved, and had been a listener to nearly all the conversation we have recorded.

Effie came and stood by Mr. Thornton. Her face was crimson; her eyes flooded with tears, through which light was flashing; her form drawn up erectly; her manner resolute.

"It isn't all my fault," she said as she laid her hand on her father's arm. "I've asked mother a great many times to let me help her, but she always puts me off, and says it's easier to do a thing herself than to show another. Maybe I am a little dull. But every one has to learn, you know.—Mother didn't get her hand in fairly with that sewing machine for two or three weeks, and I'm certain it wouldn't take me any longer. If she'd only teach me how to use it, I could help her a good deal. And indeed, father, I am willing."

"Spoke in the right spirit, my daughter," said Mr. Thornton approvingly. "Girls should be usefully employed as well as boys, and in the very things most likely to be required of them when they become women with the responsibility of wives and mothers. Depend upon it, Effie, an idle girlhood is not the way to a cheerful womanhood. Learn and do now, the very things that will be required of you in after years, and then you will have an acquired facility. Habit and skill will make easy what might come hard, and be felt very burdensome."

"And you would have to abandon all self improvement," said Mrs. Thornton.—"Give up reading, music, society—"

"There are," replied Mr. Thornton, as his wife paused for another word, "fifteen or sixteen hours in the day in which mind or hands should be rightly employed. Now let us see how Effie is spending these long and ever-recurring periods of time. The records of a day will help us to go toward the result we are now searching for."

Effie sat down and he drew a chair in front of his wife and daughter.

"Take yesterday, for instance," said her father, "how was it spent? You rose at seven, I think."

"Yes, sir, I came down just as the breakfast bell rung."

"How was it after breakfast? How was the morning spent?"

"I practiced on the piano an hour after breakfast."

"So far so good. What then?"

"I read the Cavalier until 11 o'clock."

Mr. Thornton shook his head, and then asked:

"After eleven o'clock how was the time spent?"

"I dressed myself and went out."

"At what time did you go out?"

"At twelve o'clock."

"An hour was spent in dressing?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where did you go?"

"And came home just in time for dinner, I think I met you at the door?"

"Yes, Sir."

"I slept from three to five, took a bath and dressed myself. From six until ten time I sat at the parlor window."

"And after tea?"

"Read the Cavalier till I went to bed."

"At what hour?"

"Eleven o'clock."

"Now we can make up the account," said Mr. Thornton. "You rose at seven and retired at eleven. Sixteen hours, and from your own account of the day, but a single hour was spent in anything useful—that was the hour at the piano. Now your mother was up at half past five, and went to bed from sheer inability to sit at her work any longer, at half past nine. Sixteen hours for her also. How much reading did you do in that time?"

And Mr. Thornton looked at his wife.

"Reading?—don't talk to me of reading! I've no time to read."

Mrs. Thornton answered a little impatiently. The contrast of her daughter's idle hours with her own life of exhausting toil did not affect her very pleasantly.

"And yet, said Mr. Thornton, you were very fond of reading, and I remember the time when not a day passed, without an hour or two of reading. Did you not lie down after dinner?"

"Of course not."

There was no reply.

"Now the case is a very plain one, continued Mr. Thornton. In fact nothing could be plainer. You spend from fourteen to sixteen hours daily in hard work, while Effie, taking yesterday as an example, spends the same in what is little better than idleness. Suppose a new adjustment were to take place, and Effie were to be usefully employed in helping you for eight hours of each day, she would have eight hours left for self-improvement and recreation, and you might get back a portion of the health of which these too heavy household duties have robbed you."

"Father!" said Effie, speaking through tears that were falling over her face, "I never saw things in this light. Why haven't you talked to me before! I've often felt as if I'd like to help mother. But she never gives me anything to do, and if I offer to help her, she says, you can't do it, or I'd rather do it myself. Indeed, it isn't all my fault!"

"It may not have been in the past Effie," replied Mr. Thornton, "but it certainly will be in the future, unless there is a new arrangement of things. It is a false social sentiment that lets daughters become idlers while mothers, fathers, and sons take up the daily burden of work, and bear it thro' all the busy hours."

Mrs. T. did not readily come into the new order of things proposed by her husband and accepted by Effie. False pride in her daughter, that future lady ideal, and an inclination rather to do herself than to teach another, were all so many impediments. But Effie and her father were both in earnest, and it was not long before the overtaxed mother's weary face began to lose its look of weariness and her languid frame to come up to an erecter bearing.

She could find time for the old pleasure in books, now and then for a healthful walk in the street, and a call on some valuable friend.

And was Effie the worse for the change? Did the burden she was sharing with her mother depress her shoulders, and take the lightness from her step? Not so. The languor engendered by idleness, which had begun to show itself, disappeared in a few weeks. The color came warmer into her cheeks, her eyes gained in brightness. She was growing in fact more beautiful, for a mind cheerfully conscious of duty was moulding every lineament of her countenance into a new expression.

Did self-improvement stop? O, no!—From one to two hours were given to close practice at the piano every day. Her mind, becoming vigorous in tone, instead of enervated by idleness, chose a better order of reading than had been indulged before, and she was growing towards a thoughtful, intelligent womanhood. She also found time amidst her home duties, for an hour twice a week with a German teacher, and she began also to cultivate a taste for drawing. Now that she was employing her hours usefully, it seemed wonderful how much time she found at her disposal for useful work.

How cheerful and companionable she grew! She did not seem like the Effie Thornton of a few months before. In fact the sphere of the entire household changed. As an idler, Effie had been a burden to all the rest, and the weight of that burden had been sufficient to depress, through weariness, the spirits of all. But now that she was standing up self-sustained, but a sharer in the burdens of each, all hearts came back to a lighter measure, beating rythmically and in conscious enjoyment.

DAILY GAZETTE.

IDLE HANDS.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

Mr. Thornton came home at his usual mid-day hour, and as he went by the parlor door, he saw his daughter, a young girl of nineteen, lounging on the sofa, with a book in her hands. The whirl of his wife's sewing machine struck on his ears at the same moment. Without pausing at the parlor door, he kept on to the room from which came the sound of industry.

Mrs. Thornton did not observe the entrance of her husband. She was bending close down over her work, and the noise of her machine was louder than his footsteps on the floor. Mr. Thornton stood looking at her for some moments without speaking.

"O, dear," exclaimed the tired woman, letting her foot rest on the treadle, and straightening herself up, "this pain in my side is almost beyond endurance."

"Then why do you sit killing yourself there?" said Mr. Thornton.

Mr. Thornton's aspect was unusually sober.

"What's the matter? Why do you look so serious?" asked his wife.

"Because I feel serious."

"Has anything gone wrong?"

Mrs. Thornton's countenance grew slightly troubled. Things had gone wrong in his business more than once, and she learned to dread the occurrence of disaster.

"Things are wrong all the time," was replied in some impatience.

"In your business?" Mrs. Thornton spoke a little faintly.

"No, nothing especially out of the way there; but it's all wrong at home."

"I don't understand you, Harvey. What is wrong at home, pray?"

"Wrong for you to sit, in pain and exhaustion over that sewing machine, while an idle daughter lounges over a novel in the parlor. That's what I wished to say."

"It isn't Effie's fault. She often asks to help me. But I can't see the child put down to household drudgery. Her time will come soon enough. Let her have a little ease and comfort while she may."

"If we said that of our sons," replied Mr. Thornton, and acted on the word, what efficient men they would make for the world's work. How admirably furnished they would be for life's trials and duties!"

"You are wrong in this thing—all wrong," continued the husband. "And as to ease and comfort as you say, if Effie is a right-minded girl, she will have more true enjoyment in the consciousness that she is lightening her mother's burdens, than it is possible to obtain from the finest novel ever written. Excitement of the imagination is no substitute for that deep peace of mind that ever accompanies and succeeds the right discharge of daily duties. It is a poor compliment to Effie's moral sense to suppose that she can be content to sit with idle hands, or to employ them in light frivolities, while her mother is worn down with toil beyond her strength. Hester, this must not be?"

"And it shall not be!" said a quick, firm voice.

Mr. Thornton and his wife started, and turned round to the speaker, who had entered the room unobserved, and had been a listener to nearly all the conversation we have recorded.

Effie came and stood by Mr. Thornton. Her face was crimson; her eyes flooded with tears, through which light was flashing; her form drawn up erectly; her manner resolate.

"It isn't all my fault," she said as she laid her hand on her father's arm. "I've asked mother a great many times to let me help her, but she always puts me off, and says it's easier to do a thing herself than to show another. Maybe I am a little dull. But every one has to learn, you know.—Mother didn't get her hand in fairly with that sewing machine for two or three weeks, and I'm certain it wouldn't take me any longer. If she'd only teach me how to use it, I could help her a good deal. And indeed, father, I am willing."

"Spoke in the right spirit, my daughter," said Mr. Thornton approvingly. "Girls should be usefully employed as well as boys, and in the very things most likely to be required of them when they become women with the responsibility of wives and mothers. Depend upon it, Effie, an idle girlhood is not the way to a cheerful womanhood. Learn and do now, the very things that will be required of you in after years, and then you will have an acquired facility. Habit and skill will make easy what might come hard, and be felt very burdensome."

"And you would have to abandon all self-improvement," said Mrs. Thornton.—"Give up reading, music, society—"

"There are," replied Mr. Thornton, as his wife paused for another word, "fifteen or sixteen hours in the day in which mind or hands should be rightly employed. Now let us see how Effie is spending these long and ever-recurring periods of time. The records of a day will help us to go toward the result we are now searching for."

Effie sat down and he drew a chair in front of his wife and daughter.

"Take yesterday, for instance," said her father, "how was it spent? You rose at seven, I think."

"Yes, sir, I came down just as the breakfast bell rung."

"How was it after breakfast? How was the morning spent?"

"So far so good. What then?"

"I read the Cavalier until 11 o'clock."

Mr. Thornton shook his head, and then asked:

"After eleven o'clock how was the time spent?"

"I dressed myself and went out."

"At what time did you go out?"

"At twelve o'clock."

"An hour was spent in dressing?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where did you go?"

"And came home just in time for dinner, I think I met you at the door?"

"Yes, Sir."

"I slept from three to five, took a bath and dressed myself. From six until tea time I sat at the parlor window."

"And after tea?"

"Read the Cavalier till I went to bed."

"At what hour?"

"Eleven o'clock."

"Now we can make up the account," said Mr. Thornton. "You rose at seven and retired at eleven. Sixteen hours, and from your own account of the day, but a single hour was spent in anything useful—that was the hour at the piano. Now your mother was up at half past five, and went to bed from sheer inability to sit at her work any longer, at half past nine. Sixteen hours for her also. How much reading did you do in that time?"

And Mr. Thornton looked at his wife.

"Reading?—don't talk to me of reading! I've no time to read."

Mrs. Thornton answered a little impatiently. The contrast of her daughter's idle hours with her own life of exhausting toil did not affect her very pleasantly.

"And yet, said Mr. Thornton, you were very fond of reading, and I remember the time when not a day passed, without an hour or two of reading. Did you not lie down after dinner?"

"Of course not."

There was no reply.

"Now the case is a very plain one, continued Mr. Thornton. In fact nothing could be plainer. You spend from fourteen to sixteen hours daily in hard work, while Effie, taking yesterday as an example, spends the same in what is little better than idleness. Suppose a new adjustment were to take place, and Effie were to be usefully employed in helping you for eight hours of each day, she would have eight hours left for self-improvement and recreation, and you might get back a portion of the health of which these too heavy household duties have robbed you."

"Father!" said Effie, speaking through tears that were falling over her face, "I never saw things in this light. Why haven't you talked to me before! I've often felt as if I'd like to help mother. But she never gives me anything to do, and if I offer to help her, she says, you can't do it, or I'd rather do it myself. Indeed, it isn't all my fault!"

"It may not have been in the past Effie," replied Mr. Thornton, "but it certainly will be in the future, unless there is a new arrangement of things. It is a false social sentiment that lets daughters become idlers while mothers, fathers, and sons take up the daily burden of work, and bear it thro' all the busy hours."

Mrs. T. did not readily come into the new order of things proposed by her husband and accepted by Effie. False pride in her daughter, that future lady ideal, and an inclination rather to do herself than to teach another, were all so many impediments. But Effie and her father were both in earnest, and it was not long before the overtaxed mother's weary face began to lose its look of weariness and her languid frame to come up to an erecter bearing.

She could find time for the old pleasure in books, now and then for a healthful walk in the street, and a call on some valuable friend.

And was Effie the worse for the change? Did the burden she was sharing with her mother depress her shoulders, and take the lightness from her step? Not so. The languor engendered by idleness, which had begun to show itself, disappeared in a few weeks. The color came warmer into her cheeks, her eyes gained in brightness. She was growing in fact more beautiful, for a mind cheerfully conscious of duty was moulding every lineament of her countenance into a new expression.

Did self-improvement stop? O, no!—From one to two hours were given to close practice at the piano every day. Her mind, becoming vigorous in tone, instead of enervated by idleness, chose a better order of reading than had been indulged before, and she was growing towards a thoughtful, intelligent womanhood. She also found time amidst her home duties, for an hour twice a week with a German teacher, and she began also to cultivate a taste for drawing. Now that she was employing her hours usefully, it seemed wonderful how much time she found at her disposal for useful work.

How cheerful and companionable she grew! She did not seem like the Effie Thornton of a few months before. In fact the sphere of the entire household changed. As an idler, Effie had been a burden to all the rest, and the weight of that burden had been sufficient to depress, through weariness, the spirits of all. But now that she was standing up self-sustained, but a sharer in the burdens of each, all hearts came back to a lighter measure, beating rythmically and in conscious enjoyment.

Is this Abolitionism?

We hear a good deal, now-a-days, about abolitionism, and Mr. Lovejoy of Illinois is denounced as an arch-fiend of that fearful heresy. Let us hear what this monster says. We find in the Chicago Journal the following report of the proceedings of a congressional caucus in which Mr. Lovejoy was a principal speaker:

The second caucus of the republican members of congress was more largely attended than the first one. Nearly all the speakers were in favor of the confiscation of the property of rebels and the emancipation of their slaves. The theory of the more radical congressmen is, that slavery is the rebellion. It is slavery that has marshalled the rebel army and breathes into embattled ranks its hatred of freedom. It speaks in the word of command and sounds in the morning drum-beat. While the fields of the south are being cultivated by the labor of slaves, the white rebel is digging trenches, building fortifications and pointing the cannon at the national capitol. As the master works at rebellion, the doomed African is toiling for and succoring those who are now battling for his enslavement. They maintain that the derangement of business, the increased taxes which the north must bear and the losses it must suffer, are chargeable solely to slavery, and that it is a military necessity—an act of self defence to abolish it.

This is the position of Mr. Lovejoy, and yet it is but justice to say that he is willing to stop a little short of this. At the caucus on Wednesday evening, he said, in substance, that he was willing to support the administration, whether he deemed all the measures wise or unwise. That if it had been in his power to inaugurate civil war, and could he have foreseen that the overthrow of slavery would have been the result of that war, he would not have done it. It was, therefore, unfair, he said, to charge upon any portion of the republican party that their purpose in carrying on war is to abolish slavery; but if, in putting down the rebellion, slavery is destroyed, he should not grieve. At present he was content to confiscate the property and liberate the slaves of the rebels.

A proposition of this kind will secure a majority in the house, coupled as it will probably be, with a provision to fully compensate loyal masters for the losses they may sustain.

The Right Man in the Right Place.—It turns out that the editor of the Toronto Leader, whose ferocious attacks on our government have given it notoriety, is named George Sheppard, who was late editor of the Washington Republic, late sub editor of the Washington Constitution, late agent of the "Breckinridge Central Committee," late secession writer at Richmond. Could a more appropriate tool be found for the nature of the work assigned him?

The abolition friends of Gen. Phelps explain his silly proclamation from Ship Island on the ground that he is insane. We suspect that all abolitionists are insane.—That's the way we account for it.—Madison Patriot.

On this hypothesis, the Patriot had a very severe attack of lunacy on the 25th of last April. We fear it has not yet recovered, though the disease has assumed a new form of manifestation.

☞ We find in the Cincinnati Gazette several telegraphic items (dated 24th) from its special Washington correspondent not sent in the report of the associated press:

Secretary Cameron sent to day three hundred soldiers armed and equipped for the winter from Detroit, to guard the great locks of the Saut Ste. Marie.

The three largest foundries in the country—that at Pittsburg, Alger's at South Boston, and the West Point—have been ordered to manufacture, within the next twelve months, all the ten inch columbiads they can, estimated at eighteen hundred. Guns have been ordered from Fortress Monroe to Portland.

Three hundred and thirty-nine thousand dollars have gone to Kansas to pay off her troops.

All of Fremont's officers actually in service will be paid.

A spy attached to McCall's division counted one hundred and sixty graves of the rebels, who fell in the late fight, and were buried by the citizens of Drainsville.

Lieut. Col. Windham of the Sardinian army, distinguished in Garibaldi's campaign, has offered his services and been made major of a Wisconsin regiment.

V. B. Corbett, a publisher of a well known map of the seat of war, was arrested in McCall's camp to-day as a spy. He was put, by the provost marshal, on parole till trial.

The militia law of Virginia is so altered as to subject to draft only those between twenty-one and thirty-one years old.

Parson Brownlow.—A refugee from Eastern Tennessee, who reached Cincinnati on Friday last, gave some information touching the whereabouts of Parson Brownlow. It seems that the Parson was given, by the rebels, the alternative of leaving the south or going to prison. He accepted the former. The permit was granted, and the necessary arrangements to leave were being made, when by some treacherous proceeding he was imprisoned, and it is supposed was sent to Alabama, where he now is, unless Gen. Crittenden has had the manliness to make amends for the breach of promise.

After the battle of Belmont, a man, with both legs nearly shot off, was found in the woods singing the "Star Spangled Banner." But for this circumstance, the surgeons would not have discovered him.

More About the Railroad Bribes.

"Outsider" writes another letter to the Wisconsin, in which he exculpates Col. Paine of the 4th regiment, and Col. Hamilton of the 3d, from the charge of taking money from railroad companies, and allows Col. Cutler of the 6th to make a "modification." The authority for the charges in question is testimony before Van Wyck's investigating committee, and until the report of the committee is published and the exact testimony is known, it is no more than justice to the persons implicated to suspend judgment.

"Outsider" adds some items of general interest to Wisconsin readers. He says:

Carlisle Boyd, who figured rather conspicuously in the Burch divorce case, has turned up as a captain of a company in the 5th New York, formerly "Duryea's Zouaves." Major Fred S. Boardman of the 4th Wisconsin, hearing Boyd's name mentioned by some ladies, remarked that he did not think him a fit man to associate with respectable ladies, which remark was repeated to Boyd, who thereupon came with two friends (their camps being adjoining) to see our major. On being asked if he had made such a remark about Capt. Boyd, Fred replied that he did not know he was the man, but if he was, it was true, and he reiterated it, adding that he was prepared to make his words good any time. Boyd and his friends retired very quietly, for Fred was evidently too plucky for them. On Thursday Boyd came over to Major Boardman's tent, dressed in citizen's clothes, accompanied by two friends, and waited for the major, who was absent. When Fred returned and got near Boyd, the latter struck at him, but did not do much execution, when Fred took Mr. Boyd down and gave him a good sound thrashing. Major Boardman had on his overcoat, and was taken entirely unawares. Boyd went after wool, but got shorn himself. The conduct of Major Boardman was that of a soldier and a gentleman.

Decidedly a lion here now is Col. J. H. Mansfield, of Delevan, Wis., aid to the governor, agent for the state of Wisconsin, etc., etc. If gentlemen want to see our army across the Potomac, let it be known to Col. Mansfield and, presto, all obstacles vanish. I heard at Willard's on Friday evening, one gentleman say to another, "I have been over the river and saw all the sights to day." "How did you get a pass?" was the reply. "Oh, I did not have any; Col. Mansfield of Wisconsin took over a party—went over at the government ferry, to the exclusion of government wagons, which had to wait, and came back in the the same way. Great man, Col. Mansfield! has charge of all the regiments from Wisconsin." I ascertained that the gentlemen thus conversing were from New York.—The next question raises, "Who pays the expenses?" Wisconsin men, army officers, assure me that "Mansfield has the run of the departments; if you want anything done go to him, for he can get a pass when we cannot."

Bradford Rixford, of Oshkosh, has a first class clerkship in the department of the interior. Rixford was a Lincoln elector in Wisconsin, and I am glad to say the appointment is worthily bestowed.

The popular and accomplished sergeant-at-arms of the last assembly of Wisconsin, C. A. Beebe, of Beaver Dam, is assistant postmaster of the house of representatives, and is already as popular here as he was in Wisconsin.

Byron Kilbourn is here trying to get some law passed to have his claim connected with the old canal grant settled. I met Senator Phillips of Fond du Lac on the Avenue on Thursday. I saw Gen. King and staff here; they all look well, and the general is very popular with the army.

"Old Virginia"—A Retrograde Movement.—A Richmond paper gives a synopsis of an important portion of the amended constitution of Virginia. It will be seen that it withdraws power from the many, and places it in the hands of the few:

"Members of the assembly elected annually instead of biennally, and to meet annually instead of biennially.

"The present board of public works to be abolished, and a new one to be established. All the district courts are to be abolished, and the judges of the appellate and circuit courts are to be elected by the general assembly, instead of by the qualified voters as at present. The said judges are to hold office during good behavior, and until they attain the age of —— years.

"Clerks and attorneys for the state are to be appointed by the courts, and not elected by the people. The attorney general to be appointed by the general assembly, instead of elected by the people as at present, for a term of years.

"Only the mayor, aldermen, and members of the councils—cities and town—to be elected by the people.

"Commissioned officers, soldiers, seamen, or marines in the regular army (instead of 'service in the confederate states') to be excluded from the right of suffrage. The object of this amendment is to reserve the right of voting to volunteers in the service.

"The general enactment to prohibit the future emancipation of slaves excludes the provision requiring a moiety of the capitation tax upon white persons to be applied to the purposes of education in primary schools."

Good Idea.—By a recent act of the legislature of Vermont, similar to that already adopted in other states, all banks are required to brand with a stamp or pen, every counterfeit or altered bill which is offered them in payment or deposit. If this act is properly obeyed it will be a great safeguard to the public, as it will stop the passage of spurious bills from one person to another after they have been offered to the banks. A great amount of this kind of fraud has been practiced by men pretending to be honest.—Chicago Journal.

Arrest for Embezzlement.—John Hogan, late postmaster at St. Louis, was arrested in that city on Saturday by Charles Noyes, special agent of the post office department, charged with embezzling from the department several thousand dollars during his term of office. It is charged that upon the expiration of his term of office he removed all books belonging to the post office in which his accounts were kept, by which removal the department was deprived of the opportunity of an investigation of his accounts. By some means Mr. Noyes obtained possession of the books, and upon investigation the arrest was made. Mr. Hogan was held to bail in the sum of $10,000 bonds. We are without particulars, and as the whole charge may be susceptible of explanation by the late postmaster, he should not be condemned before a hearing is had. St. Louis Republican.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent states that new muskets and rifles of the best quality are now coming in fast. The government will be in receipt of at least one hundred and sixty thousand of the best quality of arms in the next sixty days, and by the first of January all the manufactories in the north will begin to deliver to the government, and afterwards will supply the wants of the army of the United States, if it was double the present number. This will close up business with the agents of foreign speculators.

BY TELEGRAPH.

REPORTED FOR THE DAILY GAZETTE.

Last Night's Report.

Washington, Dec. 26.

Senate.—On motion of Mr. Hale, it was agreed that when the senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next, and when the senate meet on that day it adjourn to meet next Thursday.

Mr. Grimes presented a petition from citizens of Iowa for the introduction of the Homeopathic system of practice in the army.

Mr. Hale offered a resolution that the president be requested, if not incompatible with the public interest, to transmit copies of all despatches which have passed between this country and Great Britain, relative to the seizure of Mason and Slidell. Said despatches to be communicated in either open or executive session, as may be deemed proper.

Mr. Sumner objected.

Mr. Hale said he had understood from the public press, and those who held more intimate relations with the administration than himself, (though the absence of the intimacy was not his fault, as he was willing to be as confidential as anybody,) that for three or four days past the cabinet has had under consideration, a propisition, fraught with more evil to the country than anything that had yet marked its history, and that was the surrender of Mason and Slidell to Great Britain. By doing this, we would yield all that we had gained in the war of the revolution, and be humiliated to a second-rate power. No man would go farther than himself for peace, but he would not submit to national disgrace and dishonor, to obtain such a peace.

He would favor the arbitration of another power, but if a demand has been made by Great Britian for the surrender of Mason and Slidell, war should be declared against her instantly. He would make all honorable concessions for peace, but a peace involving such a surrender, would be infinitely worse than war. His friend from Indiana, Mr. Lane, had remarked this morning, that his state has now 60,000 men in the field, and would double that number to maintain the national honor.—If this senate should go home, after such a surrender and humiliation, it would be subjected to the scorn and indignation of the country. He remarked that the arrogant demand of England is a pretext for war; she was determined to humilitate first and and fight us afterwards. Let our cities and villages be pillaged and burned, but let our national honor be preserved. Francis the 1st said, after the battle of Pavia, that all was lost but honor. He, Mr. Hale, would pray that this administration might not sacrifice our national honor; thousands would yet come to the field to defend it.—If this surrender was made the administration would meet with such a fire in the rear, that it would be hurled from power. If we had a war with England, it would be for the same cause that had sent one king to the block and another homeless and houseless over the world, and one that would appeal to men wherever the English language was spoken.

He believed, too, that if Napoleon had one desire, more than another, it was to wipe out the stain upon the French arms at Waterloo. All over Canada there were thousand of Irishmen who would rush to arms to sustain such a cause as ours. Our principles were our great strength, and if war must come he would say, let it come, and thank God that we are the instrument in his hands to work out his own cause.

Mr. Sumner said his own belief was that the matter would be amicably adjusted. It was in safe hands, and it would be better for the senate to reserve themselves for facts and not act upon rumors.

Mr. Hale's resolution was laid over under the rules.

Mr. Davis gave notice that he should introduce a bill confiscating every species of property of all persons who had any connection with the southern rebellion, either in civil, military or naval capacity.

Mr. Harlan introduced a bill for establishing provisional governments in all the seceded states. Referred.

Mr. Howe introduced a bill amending the fugitive slave act. Referred. Adjourned till Monday.

Halifax, Dec. 26.

The Niagara has £20,000 in specie, and 351 troops for Halifax.

The steamship Australian, which left Liverpool with 1265 troops, a field battery, large quantities of ammunition stores, sledges, &c., for North America, also arrived at Halifax, this morning.

The West India mail has taken to England news of the escape of the Sumter from Martinique; also that on the 28th of November, the Sumter captured the American ship Montmoreny, from Newport, England, with coal for the St. Lawrence, but released her on receipt of a bond, by the captain, promising to pay $26,000, three months after peace was proclaimed.

The British war vessel Cadmus has arrived off St. Thomas, to protect vessels against another Trent affair.

Great Britain.—The attitude and preparations by England, show no change.

The London Times, editorially, reports the following story:—During the visit of the Prince of Wales to America, Mr. Seward took advantage of an entertainment to the Prince, to tell the Duke of New Castle, he was likely to occupy a high office; that when he did so, it would become his duty to insult England, and he should insult her accordingly.

The Times accumulates evidence of a long cherished intention, on the part of Mr. Seward, to do England an injury.

In another leader on international affairs the the Times advises the federal government to make peace in time, before it is committed to a triple war, viz: the confederates, the British and its own abolitionists.

A telegram from Brussels, of the 12th, to the Times, says there is a rumor in diplomatic circles, that mediation in the American conflict, will be offered by King Leopold.

The Morning Post says there is no truth in the rumor that Gen. Scott's return home was the theme of much speculation. It was generally reported that he had some sort of mission from the French government to the Washington cabinet. The Herald's Paris correspondent says he had a long interview with M. Thoveral before his departure.

To-Day's Report.

[Reported Exclusively for the Daily Gazette.]

MORNING DESPATCHES.

Liverpool, Dec. 15.

Commercial per Steamer.—Breadstuffs, flour quiet but steady at 30sa34s. Wheat steady.

London, Dec. 14.

Liverpool, Dec. 14.

Very Latest.—Breadstuffs quiet but steady, provisions firm.

Washington, Dec. 26.

Tribune's correspondence.—The statement of a Mr. Hurd concerning the escape of Col. Corcoran, published in the New York Times of Wednesday morning, is a romantic fable; at least, so far as it relates to the asserted arrival at Fortress Monroe, under a flag of truce, of the man Hurd. No such person has been heard of there—It is probable that the entire story is a fiction.

General Scott arrived by the steamship Arago, last evening. He has not yet communicated anything in reference to the cause of his hasty return from Europe. Whatever communication he intended for the immediate use of the government was dispatched on his arrival. He looks more cheerful and less care-worn than when he left the country a few weeks ago.

Mr. Ely reached this city last evening.

Dr. Marcer, brother of Gen. Marcer, reached here to-day, having come on expressly from New York city to attend Gen. McClellan and his chief of staff, who have been confined to their beds for several days. They are both getting along well, and Gen. McClellan will be in his saddle by Saturday or Monday next.

Adjutant Thomas urged upon the president the justice of reorganizing Col. Mulligan's regiment and Col. Marshall's 14th Ill. cavalry, which were captured at Lexington. His representations prevailed.—The officers and men are restored to their commissions and pay, and will again take the field in Missouri.

The financial bill which the committee of ways and means is preparing, will, it is believed, create large demands for United States stocks to be used for banking purposes.—The bills issued on a hypothecation of those stocks will have the faith of the government pledged to that extent for their redemption, that these bills are to be receivable for taxes and all other public dues to the government, and also all salaries and other debts and demands from the United States for services rendered, and for material and supplies furnished.

Mr. Stanton, brother of F. P. Stanton of Kansas, has been arrested for complicity with the rebellion in Tennessee. He has taken the oath of allegiance and has been released from Fort Lafayette.

Letters received here from Havana state that two rebel steamers the Thedosia and the Isabel were there. She was some days ago at Nassua coaling, by permission of her majesty's vessels at the government yard. The same letter states that our own vessels were not permitted to coal from our own ships at that point. Inquiry has been instituted to know whether such is the fact.

New York, Dec. 27.

A letter has been received from Arch Bishop Hughes, stating that his health has been greatly improved by his voyage.

News by the Arago confirms the report that Prince Napoleon has exercised an influence favorable to this country, since his return to France.

The London Times' Paris correspondent states distinctly that the Emperor and his ministers have made up their minds to countenance the southern confederacy even to the extent of recognizing it an early day, but have so far been prevented from making their feelings known to the press and nation, through the influence of Prince Napoleon. It is said he is preparing a speech for delivery in the French senate, taking a northern view of our international troubles.

Washington, Dec. 26.

Herald correspondence.—The cabinet at Washington had a long consultation yesterday, on the affair of the arrest of Mason and Slidell. Although the proceedings are necessarily withheld from the public, we have good reason to believe that the conviction has been come to, that the belligerent attitude assumed by the English government on this question, arose from the fact that the despatches conveyed by the Trent under the charge of Mason and Slidell, tendered to Great Britain a protectorate over the southern states, and it necessary, to make them a British colonial possession. It is stated on high authority that the whole matter, so far as has been developed, will be laid before the public in a few days, without reservation, although the final decision of the government will be reserved until the arrival of Gen. Scott at Washington, which he will probably reach to-night.

New York, Dec. 26.

The rebel schooner Fashion was captured by the sloop-of-war Ethan Allen, Nov. 25th, and sent to Key West.

AFTERNOON DESPATCHES.

Fort Monroe, Dec. 26.

A flag of truce took an immense quantity of clothing to Norfolk this afternoon, destined for the federal prisoners south.

The gunboat Key Stone State arrived here this forenoon from Bermuda. She has been in pursuit of the pirate Sumter, but has not seen her.

The brig Empire from Boston via Newport, arrived here this afternoon. She has an assorted cargo of apples, preserved meats and such articles, destined for Port Royal.

Washington, Dec. 27.

The President has approved the bill to increase the duties on tea, coffee and sugar.

Judge Arney has arrived from New Mexico, bringing dispatches from the federal army in New Mexico to the government.—He reports a strong Union feeling in the territory. Col. Canby, in command of the military department of New Mexico, has retaken forts Craig and Staunton, on the Mesilla border, driving the Texans away, and was at the latest dates enroute for Fort Fillmore, to dispossess the enemy there, that post having been traitorously surrendered by Col. Lynde to an inferior force of Texans. Thence he intends marching into Arizona to drive off the rebels, having sufficient force. There can be no doubt of his success. The Indians for the greater part, are peaceable and friendly to the government.

Judge Arney, on the way hither, passed on the Big Bend of the Arkansas the camps of the confederate tribes of the plains, consisting of about 6,000 Arapahoes, Kiowas, Comanches, Cheynes and Prairie Apaches. They desired him to say, when he reached Washington, that they would fight for the great father, the defender of the Union.

Gov. Connally has recommended to the legislative assembly the repeal of the slave code, enacted two years ago, and from the tone of public feeling an act for that purpose will be passed.

New York, Dec. 27.

Schooner Olive Branch, from Boston, at Auxcayes, reports having been chased by a brig showing British colors, saw a great number of men on her decks and supposed her to be a privateer.

The Markets.

New York, Dec. 27.

Flour quiet without important change; sales 5,600 bbls. at 5,25a5,40 super western, 5,50a5,75 common to medium ex. western. Wheat receipts 6,980 bush., market quiet, steady and unchanged; sales trifling.

Military Items.—Commissions have been issued

To Lewis M. B. Smith as captain, and to J. M. Comstock and Wm. S. Cooper as lieutenants company H, 1st cavalry.

To Edwin F. Brooks as lieutenant and battalion adjutant of the 2d battalion, 2d cavalry regiment.

To Joseph S. Lane, M. D., as 2d assistant surgeon of the 2d cavalry.

The Defence of Canada.

The Canadian papers, in anticipation of war between the United States and England and the invasion of Canada by federal troops, are canvassing the condition of the defences of the colonies. The Toronto Globe quotes from a military work by Gen. Halleck now commanding in Missouri, in which it is argued that Lake Champlain affords the best military route by which an attack can be made upon Canada. The Globe then continues:

"There is but little doubt he (Gen. Halleck) is right in indicating the Lake Champlain route as the most direct line of operation by which an attack can be made on Canada. It is the shortest route, and it would, if successful, cut off the communication of the western part of the province with Great Britian. It has this grave fault, however: while Quebec remains in our possession, an invading army in Montreal would run great danger of having its communication interfered with by an advance from the fortress in a southwesterly direction. We do not profess to have any tactical knowledge, but such, it appears to us, would be a likely result.

"One reason why the possession of the Montreal district is of great importance arises from the fact that, while we have it, we also have Ottowa river and Rideau canal under our control. The southern bank of the St. Lawrence, from opposite Cornwall and upwards, is American territory.—This places it in the power of our neighbors to blockade the river, or at any rate to render its passage very difficult. We can, however, to a very great extent, curtail the advantages they may gain there, by using the Ottawa and Rideau canal, the entrance of which latter into Lake Ontario is easily defended by the fort at Kingston. Montreal is not easily to be taken. There is a strong battery on St. Helen's Island, and the heights behind the city afford a means of defence which the people will know how to use. Any quantity of labor can be procured to throw up whatever entrenchments may be considered necessary by the military engineers. Quebec has doubtless a good store of cannon which can be forwarded by the Grand Trunk railway, and men will not be wanting to handle them. Before the weather renders it possible for the Americans to advance northward, every gun ought to have enough skilled artillerymen to put it to the most effective use.

"The Duke of Wellington has recorded it as his opinion that, unless we retain possession of Lakes Champlain, Ontario, and Erie, the best laid plans for the defence of the province may fail. Upon this Sir Archibald Alison remarks: 'The two great discomfitures sustained by us during the last war—the defeat of Proctor at the Moravian village and the retreat of Prevost from Plattsburgh—were the immediate consequences of the disasters on Lakes Erie and Champlain. The movement of Chauncey gained the ascendancy on Lake Ontario.—Toronto was taken, and the serious invasion, arrested only by the heroism at Chippewa, was commenced. Knowing then where the danger lies, and where the means of averting it are to be found, it is the duty of the British government to be ready at a moment's warning to equip or prepare a formidable naval force on Champlain, Erie and Ontario. What can be done at this season of the year to place a fleet of gunboats on Lake Champlain, we leave it to our friends below to say. We have very considerable facilities for the western lakes. Kingston is fortified sufficiently to resist any attack the Americans can make, and, under cover of the guns, before spring opens we might have boats enough, which, with those we shall receive from England, would sweep everything before them on Lake Ontario. Of course we should have to make great exertions. But upon our naval supremacy everything depends. The ship yards of Quebec afford an ample supply of skilled labor, to say nothing of our lake builders at Kingston, Toronto, Oakville, St. Catharines, Collingwood, and elsewhere.—Collingwood has already been marked out for a naval depot on Lake Huron. It will be necessary to fortify it strongly. This can soon be done, and ship-building commenced. Port Stanley and the Rondeau are important points on Lake Erie for ship-building, but if the Welland Canal is well guarded it will enable us to pass vessels of considerable size through from Lake Ontario. We may depend upon it that, if there is to be war, there will be such a turning out of gunboats in British ship-yards as was never seen before. What can be done that way was shown during the Crimean business. The 21 gun-boats mentioned by the Times as ready were built on that occasion, and we believe are small enough to pass our locks. Many others laid up in sheds at Plymouth can be launched in a few hours—they are perhaps in the harbor now—and will be available for lake and river defence.

"We believe previous experience in hard-fought campaigns proves that, the lake being safe, Toronto, Hamilton, and other points are to be best defended on the Niagara frontier. Troops must be concentrated at some point or points in the peninsula, from which they can most readily be thrown either towards Niagara, or Sarnia and Windsor.—Our extensive railway system affords us every facility for moving troops. If Toronto and London are selected as the points d'appui, we can readily meet the enemy at any point he may threaten. If, indeed, an attack from the lake be made impossible by the presence of a fleet, Toronto is in no danger, for the enemy would not dare to advance overland from Niagara, with the certainty that we could cut off his communication. On the possession of the lakes, we repeat, everything depends.

"We are not able to furnish our readers with a statement of the number of guns, of shot and shell, or of barrels of powder immediately available. Our military authorities are in the habit of keeping the knowledge of these things to themselves. A correspondent of the New York Herald recently visited Quebec, but could make nothing out, except that the fortress was strong!—Many of our readers were doubtless surprised to hear that twenty-five thousand Minie rifles had been placed at the disposal of the provincial government the other day, exclusive of those already in the hands of the volunteers. How many more there are stored away in that mysterious fortress at Quebec, it is difficult to say."

The Negro Code of the District.—In the District of Columbia the barbarous old black code of Maryland is said to be still in force. Among the laws is the following act, passed in 1729:

"When any negro or other slave shall be convicted, by confession or verdict of a jury, of any pettit treason, or murder, or willfully burning of dwelling houses, it shall be lawful for the justices before whom such conviction shall be, to give judgment against such negro or other slave, to have the right hand cut off, to be hanged in the usual manner, the head severed from the body, the body divided into four quarters, the head and quarters set up in the most public places of the county where such act was committed."

Two Russian officers in Warsaw, Count Lamber and Gen. Gerstenweig, recently got into a duel; but as a duel at that time between two high personages presented great inconveniencies, the belligerents decided that one of the two should kill himself the same evening, and that lots should be drawn to decide which it should be.—The lot fell on Gen. Gerstenwieg, who accordingly shot himself through the head as per agreement.

Southern Items.—Memphis papers as late as the 20th, have reached the office of the St. Louis Republican. They are filled with accounts of thefts, highway robberies, and other private outrages, the natural results of the political misdeeds of the rebel politician. A gang of ruffians said to number nearly five hundred persons, is prowling about the streets of Memphis, and 24 hours rarely pass without unpleasant evidence of its presence.

The amount of sequestered property in Memphis alone has thus far reached $2,500,000, and this is thought to be only about one-half of the northern property in that city.

The cost of taking the New Orleans floating battery up the river to Columbus was $120,000. Every time it was hauled to be coaled it cost $10,000.

At Boudon, Talladega county, Ala., two or three hundred weight of sulphur is turned out daily from a bed of sulphuret of iron.

A rebel government steamer recently stopped at Napoleon, Ark., early in the morning, and commenced hauling citizens from their bed to join the service. The people were very angry, but could not help themselves.

Cure for Frosted Feet.—It is said that frozen feet can be speedily and certainly cured by being bathed and well rubbed with kerosene or coal oil, for a few times at night before retiring to bed. Several persons have already tried it, all of whom unite in pronouncing it an effectual cure, which, if they are correct, is an easy and cheap mode of getting rid of a very sore, troublesome affliction. Those who have tried it say that the feet should be well warmed by a hot stove during and after the application of the oil, and it will certainly effect a speedy cure. Persons suffering from the pain of frosted feet will no doubt do well in giving it a trial, for it is surely a very cheap ointment, and one that is very easily applied.

The Daily Gazette.

City of Janesville.

Friday Evening, Dec. 27, 1861.

Official Paper of the City.

Forever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us?
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

We hear a good deal, now-a-days, about abolitionism, and Mr. Lovejoy of Illinois is denounced as an arch-fiend of that fearful heresy. Let us hear what this monster says. We find in the Chicago Journal the following report of the proceedings of a congressional caucus in which Mr. Lovejoy was a principal speaker:

The second caucus of the republican members of congress was more largely attended than the first one. Nearly all the speakers were in favor of the confiscation of the property of rebels and the emancipation of their slaves. The theory of the more radical congressmen is, that slavery is the rebellion. It is slavery that has marshalled the rebel army and breathes into embattled ranks its hatred of freedom. It speaks in the word of command and sounds in the morning drum-beat. While the fields of the south are being cultivated by the labor of slaves, the white rebel is digging trenches, building fortifications and pointing the cannon at the national capitol. As the master works at rebellion, the doomed African is toiling for and succoring those who are now battling for his enslavement. They maintain that the derangement of business, the increased taxes which the north must bear and the losses it must suffer, are chargeable solely to slavery, and that it is a military necessity—an act of self defence to abolish it.

This is the position of Mr. Lovejoy, and yet it is but justice to say that he is willing to stop a little short of this. At the caucus on Wednesday evening, he said, in substance, that he was willing to support the administration, whether he deemed all the measures wise or unwise. That if it had been in his power to inaugurate civil war, and could he have foreseen that the overthrow of slavery would have been the result of that war, he would not have done it. It was, therefore, unfair, he said, to charge upon any portion of the republican party that their purpose in carrying on war is to abolish slavery; but if, in putting down the rebellion, slavery is destroyed, he should not grieve. At present he was content to confiscate the property and liberate the slaves of the rebels.

A proposition of this kind will secure a majority in the house, coupled as it will probably be, with a provision to fully compensate loyal masters for the losses they may sustain.

The abolition friends of Gen. Phelps explain his silly proclamation from Ship Island on the ground that he is insane. We suspect that all abolitionists are insane.—That's the way we account for it.—Madison Patriot.

On this hypothesis, the Patriot had a very severe attack of lunacy on the 25th of last April. We fear it has not yet recovered, though the disease has assumed a new form of manifestation.

Secretary Cameron sent to-day three hundred soldiers armed and equipped for the winter from Detroit, to guard the great locks of the Saut Ste. Marie.

The three largest foundries in the country—that at Pittsburg, Alger's at South Boston, and the West Point—have been ordered to manufacture, within the next twelve months, all the ten inch columbiads they can, estimated at eighteen hundred. Guns have been ordered from Fortress Monroe to Portland.

All of Fremont's officers actually in service will be paid.

Lieut. Col. Windham of the Sardinian army, distinguished in Garibaldi's campaign, has offered his services and been made major of a Wisconsin regiment.

V. B. Corbett, a publisher of a well known map of the seat of war, was arrested in McCall's camp to-day as a spy. He was put, by the provost marshal, on parole till trial.

The militia law of Virginia is so altered as to subject to draft only those between twenty-one and thirty-one years old.

PARSON BROWNLOW.—A refugee from Eastern Tennessee, who reached Cincinnati on Friday last, gave some information touching the whereabouts of Parson Brownlow. It seems that the Parson was given, by the rebels, the alternative of leaving the south or going to prison. He accepted the former. The permit was granted, and the necessary arrangements to leave were being made, when by some treacherous proceeding he was imprisoned, and it is supposed was sent to Alabama, where he now is, unless Gen. Crittenden has had the manliness to make amends for the breach of promise.

After the battle of Belmont, a man, with both legs nearly shot off, was found in the woods singing the "Star Spangled Banner." But for this circumstance, the surgeons would not have discovered him.

More About the Railroad Bribes.

"Outsider" writes another letter to the Wisconsin, in which he exculpates Col. Paine of the 4th regiment, and Col. Hamilton of the 3d, from the charge of taking money from railroad companies, and allows Col. Cutler of the 6th to make a "modification." The authority for the charges in question is testimony before Van Wyck's investigating committee, and until the report of the committee is published and the exact testimony is known, it is no more than justice to the persons implicated to suspend judgment.

"Outsider" adds some items of general interest to Wisconsin readers. He says:

Carlisle Boyd, who figured rather conspicuously in the Burch divorce case, has turned up as a captain of a company in the 5th New York, formerly "Duryea's Zouaves." Major Fred S. Boardman of the 4th Wisconsin, hearing Boyd's name mentioned by some ladies, remarked that he did not think him a fit man to associate with respectable ladies, which remark was repeated to Boyd, who thereupon came with two friends (their camps being adjoining) to see our major. On being asked if he had made such a remark about Capt. Boyd, Fred replied that he did not know he was the man, but if he was, it was true, and he reiterated it, adding that he was prepared to make his words good any time. Boyd and his friends retired very quietly, for Fred was evidently too plucky for them. On Thursday Boyd came over to Major Boardman's tent, dressed in citizen's clothes, accompanied by two friends, and waited for the major, who was absent. When Fred returned and got near Boyd, the latter struck at him, but did not do much execution, when Fred took Mr. Boyd down and gave him a good sound thrashing. Major Boardman had on his overcoat, and was taken entirely unawares. Boyd went after wool, but got shorn himself. The conduct of Major Boardman was that of a soldier and a gentleman.

Decidedly a lion here now is Col. J. H. Mansfield, of Delevan, Wis., aid to the governor, agent for the state of Wisconsin, etc., etc. If gentlemen want to see our army across the Potomac, let it be known to Col. Mansfield and, presto, all obstacles vanish. I heard at Willard's on Friday evening, one gentleman say to another, "I have been over the river and saw all the sights to day." "How did you get a pass?" was the reply. "Oh, I did not have any; Col. Mansfield of Wisconsin took over a party—went over at the government ferry, to the exclusion of government wagons, which had to wait, and came back in the same way. Great man, Col. Mansfield! has charge of all the regiments from Wisconsin." I ascertained that the gentlemen thus conversing were from New York.—The next question raises, "Who pays the expenses?" Wisconsin men, army officers, assure me that "Mansfield has the run of the departments; if you want anything done go to him, for he can get a pass when we cannot."

Bradford Rixford, of Oshkosh, has a first class clerkship in the department of the interior. Rixford was a Lincoln elector in Wisconsin, and I am glad to say the appointment is worthily bestowed.

The popular and accomplished sergeant-at-arms of the last assembly of Wisconsin, C. A. Beebe, of Beaver Dam, is assistant postmaster of the house of representatives, and is already as popular here as he was in Wisconsin.

Byron Kilbourn is here trying to get some law passed to have his claim connected with the old canal grant settled. I met Senator Phillips of Fond du Lac on the Avenue on Thursday. I saw Gen. King and staff here; they all look well, and the general is very popular with the army.

"OLD VIRGINIA"—A RETROGRADE MOVEMENT.—A Richmond paper gives a synopsis of an important portion of the amended constitution of Virginia. It will be seen that it withdraws power from the many, and places it in the hands of the few:

"The present board of public works to be abolished, and a new one to be established. All the district courts are to be abolished, and the judges of the appellate and circuit courts are to be elected by the general assembly, instead of by the qualified voters as at present. The said judges are to hold office during good behavior, and until they attain the age of —— years.

"Clerks and attorneys for the state are to be appointed by the courts, and not elected by the people. The attorney general to be appointed by the general assembly, instead of elected by the people as at present, for a term of years.

"Only the mayor, aldermen, and members of the councils—cities and town—to be elected by the people.

"Commissioned officers, soldiers, seamen, or marines in the regular army (instead of 'service in the confederate states') to be excluded from the right of suffrage. The object of this amendment is to reserve the right of voting to volunteers in the service.

"The general enactment to prohibit the future emancipation of slaves excludes the provision requiring a moiety of the capitation tax upon white persons to be applied to the purposes of education in primary schools."

GOOD IDEA.—By a recent act of the legislature of Vermont, similar to that already adopted in other states, all banks are required to brand with a stamp or pen, every counterfeit or altered bill which is offered them in payment or deposit. If this act is properly obeyed it will be a great safeguard to the public, as it will stop the passage of spurious bills from one person to another after they have been offered to the banks. A great amount of this kind of fraud has been practiced by men pretending to be honest.—Chicago Journal.

ARREST FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.—John Hogan, late postmaster at St. Louis, was arrested in that city on Saturday by Charles Noyes, special agent of the post office department, charged with embezzling from the department several thousand dollars during his term of office. It is charged that upon the expiration of his term of office he removed all books belonging to the post office in which his accounts were kept, by which removal the department was deprived of the opportunity of an investigation of his accounts. By some means Mr. Noyes obtained possession of the books, and upon investigation the arrest was made. Mr. Hogan was held to bail in the sum of $10,000 bonds. We are without particulars, and as the whole charge may be susceptible of explanation by the late postmaster, he should not be condemned before a hearing is had. St. Louis Republican.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent states that new muskets and rifles of the best quality are now coming in fast. The government will be in receipt of at least one hundred and sixty thousand of the best quality of arms in the next sixty days, and by the first of January all the manufactories in the north will begin to deliver to the government, and afterwards will supply the wants of the army of the United States, if it was double the present number. This will close up business with the agents of foreign speculators.

BY TELEGRAPH.

REPORTED FOR THE DAILY GAZETTE.

Last Night's Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.

SENATE.—On motion of Mr. Hale, it was agreed that when the senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next, and when the senate meet on that day it adjourn to meet next Thursday.

Mr. Grimes presented a petition from citizens of Iowa for the introduction of the Homeopathic system of practice in the army.

Mr. Hale offered a resolution that the president be requested, if not incompatible with the public interest, to transmit copies of all despatches which have passed between this country and Great Britain, relative to the seizure of Mason and Slidell. Said despatches to be communicated in either open or executive session, as may be deemed proper.

Mr. Sumner objected.

Mr. Hale said he had understood from the public press, and those who held more intimate relations with the administration than himself, (though the absence of the intimacy was not his fault, as he was willing to be as confidential as anybody,) that for three or four days past the cabinet has had under consideration, a propisition, traught with more evil to the country than anything that had yet marked its history, and that was the surrender of Mason and Slidell to Great Britain. By doing this, we would yield all that we had gained in the war of the revolution, and be humiliated to a second-rate power. No man would go farther than himself for peace, but he would not submit to national disgrace and dishonor, to obtain such a peace.

He would favor the arbitration of another power, but if a demand has been made by Great Britian for the surrender of Mason and Slidell, war should be declared against her instantly. He would make all honorable concessions for peace, but a peace involving such a surrender, would be infinitely worse than war. His friend from Indiana, Mr. Lane, had remarked this morning, that his state has now 60,000 men in the field, and would double that number to maintain the national honor.—If this senate should go home, after such a surrender and humiliation, it would be subjected to the scorn and indignation of the country. He remarked that the arrogant demand of England is a pretext for war: she was determined to humilitate first and and fight us afterwards. Let our cities and villages be pillaged and burned, but let our national honor be preserved. Francis the 1st said, after the battle of Pavia, that all was lost but honor. He, Mr. Hale, would pray that this administration might not sacrifice our national honor; thousands would yet come to the field to defend it.—If this surrender was made the administration would meet with such a fire in the rear, that it would be hurled from power. If we had a war with England, it would be for the same cause that had sent one king to the block and another homeless and houseless over the world, and one that would appeal to men wherever the English language was spoken.

He believed, too, that if Napoleon had one desire, more than another, it was to wipe out the stain upon the French arms at Waterloo. All over Canada there were thousand of Irishmen who would rush to arms to sustain such a cause as ours. Our principles were our great strength, and if war must come he would say, let it come, and thank God that we are the instrument in his hands to work out his own cause.

Mr. Sumner said his own belief was that the matter would be amicably adjusted. It was in safe hands, and it would be better for the senate to reserve themselves for facts and not act upon rumors.

Mr. Hale's resolution was laid over under the rules.

Mr. Davis gave notice that he should introduce a bill confiscating every species of property of all persons who had any connection with the southern rebellion, either in civil, military or naval capacity.

Mr. Harlan introduced a bill for establishing provisional governments in all the seceded states. Referred.

Mr. Howe introduced a bill amending the fugitive slave act. Referred. Adjourned till Monday.

HALIFAX, Dec. 26.

The Niagara has £20,000 in specie, and 351 troops for Halifax.

The steamship Australian, which left Liverpool with 1265 troops, a field battery, large quantities of ammunition stores, sledges, &c., for North America, also arrived at Halifax, this morning.

The West India mail has taken to England news of the escape of the Sumter from Martinique; also that on the 28th of November, the Sumter captured the American ship Montmoreny, from Newport, England, with coal for the St. Lawrence, but released her on receipt of a bond, by the captain, promising to pay $26,000, three months after peace was proclaimed.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The attitude and preparations by England, show no change.

The London Times, editorially, reports the following story:—During the visit of the Prince of Wales to America, Mr. Seward took advantage of an entertainment to the Prince, to tell the Duke of New Castle, he was likely to occupy a high office; that when he did so, it would become his duty to insult England, and he should insult her accordingly.

The Times accumulates evidence of a long cherished intention, on the part of Mr. Seward, to do England an injury.

In another leader on international affairs the the Times advises the federal government to make peace in time, before it is committed to a triple war, viz: the confederates, the British and its own abolitionists.

A telegram from Brussels, of the 12th, to the Times, says there is a rumor in diplomatic circles, that mediation in the American conflict, will be offered by King Leopold.

The Morning Post says there is no truth in the rumor that Gen. Scott's return home was the theme of much speculation. It was generally reported that he had some sort of mission from the French government to the Washington cabinet. The Herald's Paris correspondent says he had a long interview with M. Thovenal before his departure.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.

Tribune's correspondence.—The statement of a Mr. Hurd concerning the escape of Col. Corcoran, published in the New York Times of Wednesday morning, is a romantic fable; at least, so far as it relates to the asserted arrival at Fortress Monroe, under a flag of truce, of the man Hurd. No such person has been heard of there.—It is probable that the entire story is a fiction.

General Scott arrived by the steamship Arago, last evening. He has not yet communicated anything in reference to the cause of his hasty return from Europe. Whatever communication he intended for the immediate use of the government was dispatched on his arrival. He looks more cheerful and less care-worn than when he left the country a few weeks ago.

Mr. Ely reached this city last evening.

Dr. Marcer, brother of Gen. Marcer, reached here to-day, having come on expressly from New York city to attend Gen. McClellan and his chief of staff, who have been confined to their beds for several days. They are both getting along well, and Gen. McClellan will be in his saddle by Saturday or Monday next.

Adjutant Thomas urged upon the president the justice of reorganizing Col. Mulligan's regiment and Col. Marshall's 14th Ill. cavalry, which were captured at Lexington. His representations prevailed.—The officers and men are restored to their commissions and pay, and will again take the field in Missouri.

The financial bill which the committee of ways and means is preparing, will, it is believed, create large demands for United States stocks to be used for banking purposes.—The bills issued on a hypothecation of those stocks will have the faith of the government pledged to that extent for their redemption, that these bills are to be receivable for taxes and all other public dues to the government, and also all salaries and other debts and demands from the United States for services rendered, and for material and supplies furnished.

Mr. Stanton, brother of F. P. Stanton of Kansas, has been arrested for complicity with the rebellion in Tennessee. He has taken the oath of allegiance and has been released from Fort Lafayette.

Letters received here from Havana state that two rebel steamers the Thedosia and the Isabel were there. She was some days ago at Nassua coaling, by permission of her majesty's vessels at the government yard. The same letter states that our own vessels were not permitted to coal from our own ships at that point. Inquiry has been instituted to know whether such is the fact.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.

A letter has been received from Arch Bishop Hughes, stating that his health has been greatly improved by his voyage.

News by the Arago confirms the report that Prince Napoleon has exercised an influence favorable to this country, since his return to France.

The London Times' Paris correspondent states distinctly that the Emperor and his ministers have made up their minds to countenance the southern confederacy even to the extent of recognizing it an early day, but have so far been prevented from making their feelings known to the press and nation, through the influence of Prince Napoleon. It is said he is preparing a speech for delivery in the French senate, taking a northern view of our international troubles.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.

Herald correspondence.—The cabinet at Washington had a long consultation yesterday, on the affair of the arrest of Mason and Slidell. Although the proceedings are necessarily withheld from the public, we have good reason to believe that the conviction has been come to, that the belligerent attitude assumed by the English government on this question, arose from the fact that the despatches conveyed by the Trent under the charge of Mason and Slidell, tendered to Great Britain a protectorate over the southern states, and if necessary, to make them a British colonial possession. It is stated on high authority that the whole matter, so far as has been developed, will be laid before the public in a few days, without reservation, although the final decision of the government will be reserved until the arrival of Gen. Scott at Washington, which he will probably reach to-night.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.

The rebel schooner Fashion was captured by the sloop-of-war Ethan Allen, Nov. 25th, and sent to Key West.

AFTERNOON DESPATCHES.

FORT MONROE, Dec. 26.

A flag of truce took an immense quantity of clothing to Norfolk this afternoon, destined for the federal prisoners south.

The gunboat Key Stone State arrived here this forenoon from Bermuda. She has been in pursuit of the pirate Sumter, but has not seen her.

The brig Empire from Boston via Newport, arrived here this afternoon. She has an assorted cargo of apples, preserved meats and such articles, destined for Port Royal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.

The President has approved the bill to increase the duties on tea, coffee and sugar.

Judge Arney has arrived from New Mexico, bringing dispatches from the federal army in New Mexico to the government.—He reports a strong Union feeling in the territory. Col. Canby, in command of the military department of New Mexico, has retaken forts Craig and Staunton, on the Mesilla border, driving the Texans away, and was at the latest dates enroute for Fort Fillmore, to dispossess the enemy there, that post having been traitorously surrendered by Col. Lynde to an inferior force of Texans. Thence he intends marching into Arizona to drive off the rebels, having sufficient force. There can be no doubt of his success. The Indians for the greater part, are peaceable and friendly to the government.

Judge Arney, on the way hither, passed on the Big Bend of the Arkansas the camps of the confederate tribes of the plains, consisting of about 6,000 Arapahoes, Kiowas, Comanches, Cheynes and Prairie Apaches. They desired him to say, when he reached Washington, that they would fight for the great father, the defender of the Union.

Gov. Connally has recommended to the legislative assembly the repeal of the slave code, enacted two years ago, and from the tone of public feeling an act for that purpose will be passed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.

Schooner Olive Branch, from Boston, at Auxcayes, reports having been chased by a brig showing British colors, saw a great number of men on her decks and supposed her to be a privateer.

The Markets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.

Flour quiet without important change; sales 5,600 bbls. at 5,25a5,40 super western, 5,50a5,75 common to medium ex. western. Wheat receipts 6,980 bush., market quiet, steady and unchanged; sales trifling.

MILITARY ITEMS.—Commissions have been issued

To Lewis M. B. Smith as captain, and to J. M. Comstock and Wm. S. Cooper as lieutenants company H, 1st cavalry.

To Edwin F. Brooks as lieutenant and battalion adjutant of the 2d battalion, 2d cavalry regiment.

To Joseph S. Lane, M. D., as 2d assistant surgeon of the 2d cavalry.

The Defence of Canada.

The Canadian papers, in anticipation of war between the United States and England and the invasion of Canada by federal troops, are canvassing the condition of the defences of the colonies. The Toronto Globe quotes from a military work by Gen. Halleck now commanding in Missouri, in which it is argued that Lake Champlain affords the best military route by which an attack can be made upon Canada. The Globe then continues:

"There is but little doubt he (Gen. Halleck) is right in indicating the Lake Champlain route as the most direct line of operation by which an attack can be made on Canada. It is the shortest route, and it would, if successful, cut off the communication of the western part of the province with Great Britian. It has this grave fault, however: while Quebec remains in our possession, an invading army in Montreal would run great danger of having its communication interfered with by an advance from the fortress in a southwesterly direction. We do not profess to have any tactical knowledge, but such, it appears to us, would be a likely result.

"One reason why the possession of the Montreal district is of great importance arises from the fact that, while we have it, we also have Ottowa river and Rideau canal under our control. The southern bank of the St. Lawrence, from opposite Cornwall and upwards, is American territory.—This places it in the power of our neighbors to blockade the river, or at any rate to render its passage very difficult. We can, however, to a very great extent, curtail the advantages they may gain there, by using the Ottawa and Rideau canal, the entrance of which latter into Lake Ontario is easily defended by the fort at Kingston. Montreal is not easily to be taken. There is a strong battery on St. Helen's Island, and the heights behind the city afford a means of defence which the people will know how to use. Any quantity of labor can be procured to throw up whatever entrenchments may be considered necessary by the military engineers. Quebec has doubtless a good store of cannon which can be forwarded by the Grand Trunk railway, and men will not be wanting to handle them. Before the weather renders it possible for the Americans to advance northward, every gun ought to have enough skilled artillerymen to put it to the most effective use.

"The Duke of Wellington has recorded it as his opinion that, unless we retain possession of Lakes Champlain, Ontario, and Erie, the best laid plans for the defence of the province may fail. Upon this Sir Archibald Alison remarks: 'The two great discomfitures sustained by us during the last war—the defeat of Proctor at the Moravian village and the retreat of Prevost from Plattsburgh—were the immediate consequences of the disasters on Lakes Erie and Champlain. The movement of Chauncey gained the ascendancy on Lake Ontario.—Toronto was taken, and the serious invasion, arrested only by the heroism at Chippewa, was commenced. Knowing then where the danger lies, and where the means of averting it are to be found, it is the duty of the British government to be ready at a moment's warning to equip or prepare a formidable naval force on Champlain, Erie and Ontario. What can be done at this season of the year to place a fleet of gunboats on Lake Champlain, we leave it to our friends below to say. We have very considerable facilities for the western lakes. Kingston is fortified sufficiently to resist any attack the Americans can make, and, under cover of the guns, before spring opens we might have boats enough, which, with those we shall receive from England, would sweep everything before them on Lake Ontario. Of course we should have to make great exertions. But upon our naval supremacy everything depends. The ship-yards of Quebec afford an ample supply of skilled labor, to say nothing of our lake builders at Kingston, Toronto, Oakville, St. Catharines, Collingwood, and elsewhere.—Collingwood has already been marked out for a naval depot on Lake Huron. It will be necessary to fortify it strongly. This can soon be done, and ship-building commenced. Port Stanley and the Rondeau are important points on Lake Erie for ship-building, but if the Welland Canal is well guarded it will enable us to pass vessels of considerable size through from Lake Ontario. We may depend upon it that, if there is to be war, there will be such a turning out of gunboats in British ship-yards as was never seen before.' What can be done that way was shown during the Crimean business. The 21 gun-boats mentioned by the Times as ready were built on that occasion, and we believe are small enough to pass our locks. Many others laid up in sheds at Plymouth can be launched in a few hours—they are perhaps in the harbor now—and will be available for lake and river defence.

"We believe previous experience in hard-fought campaigns proves that, the lake being safe, Toronto, Hamilton, and other points are to be best defended on the Niagara frontier. Troops must be concentrated at some point or points in the peninsula, from which they can most readily be thrown either towards Niagara, or Sarnia and Windsor.—Our extensive railway system affords us every facility for moving troops. If Toronto and London are selected as the points d'appui, we can readily meet the enemy at any point he may threaten. If, indeed, an attack from the lake be made impossible by the presence of a fleet, Toronto is in no danger, for the enemy would not dare to advance overland from Niagara, with the certainty that we could cut off his communication. On the possession of the lakes, we repeat, everything depends.

"We are not able to furnish our readers with a statement of the number of guns, of shot and shell, or of barrels of powder immediately available. Our military authorities are in the habit of keeping the knowledge of these things to themselves. A correspondent of the New York Herald recently visited Quebec, but could make nothing out, except that the fortress was strong!—Many of our readers were doubtless surprised to hear that twenty-five thousand Minie rifles had been placed at the disposal of the provincial government the other day, exclusive of those already in the hands of the volunteers. How many more there are stored away in that mysterious fortress at Quebec, it is difficult to say."

THE NEGRO CODE OF THE DISTRICT.—In the District of Columbia the barbarous old black code of Maryland is said to be still in force. Among the laws is the following act, passed in 1729:

"When any negro or other slave shall be convicted, by confession or verdict of a jury, of any pettit treason, or murder, or willfully burning of dwelling houses, it shall be lawful for the justices before whom such conviction shall be, to give judgment against such negro or other slave, to have the right hand cut off, to be hanged in the usual manner, the head severed from the body, the body divided into four quarters, the head and quarters set up in the most public places of the county where such act was committed."

Two Russian officers in Warsaw, Count Lamber and Gen. Gerstenweig, recently got into a duel; but as a duel at that time between two high personages presented great inconveniencies, the belligerents decided that one of the two should kill himself the same evening, and that lots should be drawn to decide which it should be.—The lot fell on Gen. Gerstenwieg, who accordingly shot himself through the head as per agreement.

SOUTHERN ITEMS.—Memphis papers as late as the 20th, have reached the office of the St. Louis Republican. They are filled with accounts of thefts, highway robberies, and other private outrages, the natural results of the political misdeeds of the rebel politician. A gang of ruffians said to number nearly five hundred persons, is prowling about the streets of Memphis, and 24 hours rarely pass without unpleasant evidence of its presence.

The amount of sequestered property in Memphis alone has thus far reached $2,500,000, and this is thought to be only about one-half of the northern property in that city.

The cost of taking the New Orleans floating battery up the river to Columbus was $120,000. Every time it was hauled to be coaled it cost $10,000.

At Boudon, Talladega county, Ala., two or three hundred weight of sulphur is turned out daily from a bed of sulphuret of iron.

A rebel government steamer recently stopped at Napoleon, Ark., early in the morning, and commenced hauling citizens from their bed to join the service. The people were very angry, but could not help themselves.

CURE FOR FROSTED FEET.—It is said that frozen feet can be speedily and certainly cured by being bathed and well rubbed with kerosene or coal oil, for a few times at night before retiring to bed. Several persons have already tried it, all of whom unite in pronouncing it an effectual cure, which, if they are correct, is an easy and cheap mode of getting rid of a very sore, troublesome affliction. Those who have tried it say that the feet should be well warmed by a hot stove during and after the application of the oil, and it will certainly effect a speedy cure. Persons suffering from the pain of frosted feet will no doubt do well in giving it a trial, for it is surely a very cheap ointment, and one that is very easily applied.

BRYANT & STRATTON'S GREAT CHAIN OF COMMERCIAL COLLEGES.—It affords us pleasure to announce to the public that this great "Chain of Business Colleges" is still expanding. By request of the citizens of Brooklyn, Messrs. Bryant & Stratton have recently opened a college in Troy, New York, which is the tenth college in the chain. These institutions are all opened with a view to permanence, as well as thoroughness in instruction. Large eligible rooms are selected and fitted up at a great outlay with all the modern improvements. It is well known that a large number of smaller institutions of this character have been obliged to close up during the past year for want of patronage. The National Chain seem to outride the storm and enjoy a good degree of prosperity. Messrs. Bryant & Stratton are preparing a full series of Commercial Text Books. Four of these books are now completed and ready for use, viz:—Commercial Law, 360 pages, price $2.50; Commercial Arithmetic, 332 pages, price $1.25; Book-Keeping, 216 pages, price $1.75; Primary Book-Keeping, 196 pages, price 75 cents. We take pleasure in presenting the claims of these colleges, and also of these books, knowing that they are of sterling value and worthy of recommendation.

For the Daily Gazette.

We are happy to announce to our citizens that our old, esteemed and amusing friend, J. B. Chambers, is again in town. Notwithstanding his great powers as a statesman, he considers his duty to his country, in her hour of trial, as paramount to all besides, and has accepted an appointment in the army, and having received orders to join his regiment in a few days, he proposes to sell at auction his magnificent stock of jewelry and watches, at the store of Chas. Pulker, on Milwaukee street. We need not remind our friends that this will be a good opportunity to secure New Year's gifts at their own prices.

A COINCIDENCE.—The Pittsburg Despatch says:

At the very spot where Col. Geary was cannonading the other day, at Point of Rocks, he was operating a few years since as master iron manufacturer. A friend thinks it extremely probable that the "houses shelled near the Old Furnace" were erected by Col. Geary some years ago. He had extensive iron works there, on both sides of the river, and is familiar with every inch of the ground.

To Our Debtors.

It will be seen by a notice in another column, that on the first of January next there will be a change in the proprietorship of the Gazette. The NECESSITY of a settlement of ALL our accounts will be apparent to all who will give the subject their attention, and as our own convenience will be materially promoted by a settlement before the dissolution of the partnership, and the interest of no debtor will be injured by doing in season what must come at last, we hope there will be no request or attempt at delay. Mr. Wilcox will devote his time to this matter, and as there are a large number of persons to settle with, let each one be prepared when called on. No one will be turned out of the office if he calls here for that purpose.

Plated TEA SETTS, Castors, Cake Baskets, Forks and Spoons, at (de11dlm) WEBB & LEE'S.

CAN THE REBELS SAVE THEIR BACON?—Next to the absorbing questions of peace or war between the northern states and Great Britain, and at the point or points at which the Union forces are likely to strike next, appears to be the problem of saving their bacon. Although it may not, at first, seem to be a very difficult one to solve, the presentation of a few facts on the subject will probably place it in a different light. According to the census statistics of 1850, it was estimated that there were no less than sixteen million hogs in the rebel states, and that about four million are killed each winter. Now, to corn this pork twenty-five thousand tons of salt are needed, and this amount will be required during the next four or five weeks, which may be considered to embrace the entire winter season in the south. The trouble which presents itself to the rebels in the matter is, where is the salt to come from? According to late accounts from New Orleans, Charleston, Mobile, and other southern cities, salt commanded almost fabulous prices, and that it was scarcely attainable at any rate. The scarcity of salt will be found to be a grave matter before the end of the following year, if it is not forthcoming and fully distributed to meet the demand. Neither the men in the army nor the slaves on the plantations can dispense with this necessary article of food.

A NEPHEW OF JEFF. DAVIS IN THE UNION SERVICE.—The Journal says that among Capt. Read's Rifle Rangers, who joined Gen. Butler's expedition, is a nephew of Jeff. Davis. He is a refugee from the south, his property having been confiscated on account of his Union sentiments. He has a brother captain of the marines on the privateer Sumter, a second commanding a company of Louisana Zouaves, and a third a private in the same company. Mr. Bennthusan, the person alluded to, now of Capt. Read's squadron, has been filling the position of quartermaster in Berdan's regiment of Sharpshooters at Washington.

SHALL WE SUFFER FOR SALTPETER?—Some uneasiness has been created here by the announcement in recent English papers that large quantities of saltpetre bought in England for account of our government have been stopped. We are able to say on the highest authority, that this step cannot in the least embarrass us. The government has on hand now an immense supply of this necessary article, most of which has been in store since the war of 1812. The am't of saltpetre now in government stores is, we are assured, sufficient for all emergencies.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

AN "ABLE AND GALLANT" OFFICER.—The St. Louis Democrat says the following is an extract of a private letter from a soldier. It is not necessary to name the colonel.—If any of the authorities wish to know his name it can be furnished:

"When we commenced marching on Saturday last, our colonel was so drunk that he could scarcely get on his horse. The next day he sent the sergeant major back for four gallons of whiskey, and the day following on a similar errand. All he thinks about is whiskey. He is a good drill officer, as he was connected with the regular army for twenty years; but I think he has been drunk every night since he has been in camp. He is pretty noisy when in this condition, and seldom utters a word without a curse. When at the Gasconade river, our captain asked him if he had heard any news, when he turned round and asked him 'what in hell he asked questions for—was it any of his business?'"

☞ The Jefferson Republican says there are evidences that there is an organized band of horse thieves in the state, and warns its readers to "shut their barn doors."

☞ California editors apprehend considerable difficulty in working the telegraph to the eastern states in the winter months. One paper says:

"Thus far, the storms in the mountains have seriously retarded communication with the east—whether owing to the chill and density of the atmosphere or the insulation of the wires in ice, we are not informed."

A POLICY.—The boys of our village have a military organization composed of "loyal men." The penalty for any one who plays the rebel, is that he receive three pinches anywhere on his body, four kicks anywhere excepting the head, and four clips with the fist wherever they can hit him. We suggest the above "policy" to Uncle Sam.—Wouldn't it be better than sweating in?—Wood Co. Reporter.

A New Arrangement.

On the 1st of next January a change will be made in the proprietorship of the Gazette Office by the withdrawal of Mr. Bowen. This change will render absolutely necessary a settlement of the subscriptions and other accounts due the present firm. We hope our friends will give this matter their immediate attention, and leave as few debts as possible for settlement after the change is made. It will be easier and better to all concerned to settle before that time, as a settlement must be made.

LIBRARY FOR THE 13TH REGIMENT.—We have the pleasure of saying to our friends that our chest is full; many and sincere thanks to all who aided us in the matter.—We have quite a number of duplicates of works donated to us which we propose to hand over to Col. Barstow's regiment when suitable arrangements are made to receive and properly circulate them. We are told that suitable reading is one of the great wants of our volunteer army. Let the 3d cavalry be generously supplied.

BRYANT & STRATTON'S GREAT CHAIN OF COMMERCIAL COLLEGES.—It affords us pleasure to announce to the public that this great "Chain of Business Colleges" is still expanding. By request of the citizens of Brooklyn, Messrs. Bryant & Stratton have recently opened a college in Troy, New York, which is the tenth college in the chain. These institutions are all opened with a view to permanence, as well as thoroughness in instruction. Large eligible rooms are selected and fitted up at a great outlay with all the modern improvements. It is well known that a large number of smaller institutions of this character have been obliged to close up during the past year for want of patronage. The National Chain seem to outride the storm and enjoy a good degree of prosperity. Messrs. Bryant & Stratton are preparing a full series of Commercial Text Books. Four of these books are now completed and ready for use, viz:—Commercial Law, 360 pages, price $2.50; Commercial Arithmetic, 332 pages, price $1.25; Book-Keeping, 216 pages, price $1.75; Primary Book-Keeping, 196 pages, price 75 cents. We take pleasure in presenting the claims of these colleges, and also of these books, knowing that they are of sterling value and worthy of recommendation.

FOR SILVER SPOONS AND FORKS, call on dell1dlm WEBB & LEE.

For the Daily Gazette.

We are happy to announce to our citizens that our old, esteemed and amusing friend, J. B. Chambers, is again in town. Notwithstanding his great powers as a statesman, he considers his duty to his country, in her hour of trial, as paramount to all besides, and has accepted an appointment in the army, and having received orders to join his regiment in a few days, he proposes to sell at auction his magnificent stock of jewelry and watches, at the store of Chas. Pulker, on Milwaukee street. We need not remind our friends that this will be a good opportunity to secure New Year's gifts at their own prices.

A COINCIDENCE.—The Pittsburg Despatch says:

At the very spot where Col. Geary was cannonading the other day, at Point of Rocks, he was operating a few years since as master iron manufacturer. A friend thinks it extremely probable that the "houses shelled near the Old Furnace" were erected by Col. Geary some years ago. He had extensive iron works there, on both sides of the river, and is familiar with every inch of the ground.

To Our Debtors.

It will be seen by a notice in another column, that on the first of January next there will be a change in the proprietorship of the Gazette. The NECESSITY of a settlement of ALL our accounts will be apparent to all who will give the subject their attention, and as our own convenience will be materially promoted by a settlement before the dissolution of the partnership, and the interest of no debtor will be injured by doing in season what must come at last, we hope there will be no request or attempt at delay. Mr. Wilcox will devote his time to this matter, and as there are a large number of persons to settle with, let each one be prepared when called on. No one will be turned out of the office if he calls here for that purpose.

CAN THE REBELS SAVE THEIR BACON?—Next to the absorbing questions of peace or war between the northern states and Great Britain, and at the point or points at which the Union forces are likely to strike next, appears to be the problem of saving their bacon. Although it may not, at first, seem to be a very difficult one to solve, the presentation of a few facts on the subject will probably place it in a different light. According to the census statistics of 1860, it was estimated that there were no less than sixteen million hogs in the rebel states, and that about four million are killed each winter. Now, to corn this pork twenty-five thousand tons of salt are needed, and this amount will be required during the next four or five weeks, which may be considered to embrace the entire winter season in the south. The trouble which presents itself to the rebels in the matter is, where is the salt to come from? According to late accounts from New Orleans, Charleston, Mobile, and other southern cities, salt commanded almost fabulous prices, and that it was scarcely attainable at any rate. The scarcity of salt will be found to be a grave matter before the end of the following year, if it is not forthcoming and fully distributed to meet the demand. Neither the men in the army nor the slaves on the plantations can dispense with this necessary article of food.

A NEPHEW OF JEFF. DAVIS IN THE UNION SERVICE.—The Journal says that among Capt. Read's Rifle Rangers, who joined Gen. Butler's expedition, is a nephew of Jeff. Davis. He is a refugee from the south, his property having been confiscated on account of his Union sentiments. He has a brother captain of the marines on the privateer Sumter, a second commanding a company of Louisana Zouaves, and a third a private in the same company. Mr. Hennthesan, the person alluded to, now of Capt. Read's squadron, has been filling the position of quartermaster in Berdan's regiment of Sharpshooters at Washington.

SHALL WE SUFFER FOR SALTPETER?—Some uneasiness has been created here by the announcement in recent English papers that large quantities of saltpetre bought in England for account of our government have been stopped. We are able to say on the highest authority, that this step cannot in the least embarrass us. The government has on hand now an immense supply of this necessary article, most of which has been in store since the war of 1812. The am't of saltpetre now in government stores is, we are assured, sufficient for all emergencies.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

AN "ABLE AND GALLANT" OFFICER.—The St. Louis Democrat says the following is an extract of a private letter from a soldier. It is not necessary to name the colonel.—If any of the authorities wish to know his name it can be furnished:

"When we commenced marching on Saturday last, our colonel was so drunk that he could scarcely get on his horse. The next day he sent the sergeant major back for four gallons of whiskey, and the day following on a similar errand. All he thinks about is whiskey. He is a good drill officer, as he was connected with the regular army for twenty years; but I think he has been drunk every night since he has been in camp. He is pretty noisy when in this condition, and seldom utters a word without a curse. When at the Gasconde river, our captain asked him if he had heard any news, when he turned round and asked him 'what in hell he asked questions for—was it any of his business?'"

☞ The Jefferson Republican says there are evidences that there is an organized band of horse thieves in the state, and warns its readers to "shut their barn doors."

☞California editors apprehend considerable difficulty in working the telegraph to the eastern states in the winter months. One paper says:

"Thus far, the storms in the mountains have seriously retarded communication with the east—whether owing to the chill and density of the atmosphere or the insulation of the wires in ice, we are not informed."

A POLICY.—The boys of our village have a military organization composed of "loyal men." The penalty for any one who plays the rebel, is that he receive three pinches anywhere on his body, four kicks anywhere excepting the head, and four clips with the fist wherever they can hit him. We suggest the above "policy" to Uncle Sam.—Wouldn't it be better than sweating in?—Wood Co. Reporter.

DAILY GAZETTE.

IDLE HANDS.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

Mr. Thornton came home at his usual mid-day hour, and as he went by the parlor door, he saw his daughter, a young girl of nineteen, lounging on the sofa, with a book in her hands. The whirl of his wife's sewing machine struck on his ears at the same moment. Without pausing at the parlor door, he kept on to the room from which came the sound of industry.

Mrs. Thornton did not observe the entrance of her husband. She was bending close down over her work, and the noise of her machine was louder than his footsteps on the floor. Mr. Thornton stood looking at her for some moments without speaking.

"O, dear," exclaimed the tired woman, letting her foot rest on the treadle, and straightening herself up, "this pain in my side is almost beyond endurance."

"Then why do you sit killing yourself there?" said Mr. Thornton.

Mr. Thornton's aspect was unusually sober.

"What's the matter? Why do you look so serious?" asked his wife.

"Because I feel serious."

"Has anything gone wrong?"

Mrs. Thornton's countenance grew slightly troubled. Things had gone wrong in his business more than once, and she learned to dread the occurrence of disaster.

"Things are wrong all the time," was replied in some impatience.

"In your business?" Mrs. Thornton spoke a little faintly.

"No, nothing especially out of the way there; but it's all wrong at home."

"I don't understand you, Harvey. What is wrong at home, pray?"

"Wrong for you to sit, in pain and exhaustion over that sewing machine, while an idle daughter lounges over a novel in the parlor. That's what I wished to say."

"It isn't Effie's fault. She often asks to help me. But I can't see the child put down to household drudgery. Her time will come soon enough. Let her have a little ease and comfort while she may."

"If we said that of our sons," replied Mr. Thornton, and acted on the word, what efficient men they would make for the world's work. How admirably furnished they would be for life's trials and duties!"

"You are wrong in this thing—all wrong," continued the husband. "And as to ease and comfort as you say, if Effie is a right-minded girl, she will have more true enjoyment in the consciousness that she is lightening her mother's burdens, than it is possible to obtain from the finest novel ever written. Excitement of the imagination is no substitute for that deep peace of mind that ever accompanies and succeeds the right discharge of daily duties. It is a poor compliment to Effie's moral sense to suppose that she can be content to sit with idle hands, or to employ them in light frivolities, while her mother is worn down with toil beyond her strength. Hester, this must not be?"

"And it shall not be!" said a quick, firm voice.

Mr. Thornton and his wife started, and turned round to the speaker, who had entered the room unobserved, and had been a listener to nearly all the conversation we have recorded.

Effie came and stood by Mr. Thornton. Her face was crimson; her eyes flooded with tears, through which light was flashing; her form drawn up erectly; her manner resolute.

"It isn't all my fault," she said as she laid her hand on her father's arm. "I've asked mother a great many times to let me help her, but she always puts me off, and says it's easier to do a thing herself than to show another. Maybe I am a little dull. But every one has to learn, you know.—Mother didn't get her hand in fairly with that sewing machine for two or three weeks, and I'm certain it wouldn't take me any longer. If she'd only teach me how to use it, I could help her a good deal. And indeed, father, I am willing."

"Spoke in the right spirit, my daughter," said Mr. Thornton approvingly. "Girls should be usefully employed as well as boys, and in the very things most likely to be required of them when they become women with the responsibility of wives and mothers. Depend upon it, Effie, an idle girlhood is not the way to a cheerful womanhood. Learn and do now, the very things that will be required of you in after years, and then you will have an acquired facility. Habit and skill will make easy what might come hard, and be felt very burdensome."

"And you would have to abandon all self-improvement," said Mrs. Thornton.—"Give up reading, music, society—"

"There are," replied Mr. Thornton, as his wife paused for another word, "fifteen or sixteen hours in the day in which mind or hands should be rightly employed. Now let us see how Effie is spending these long and ever-recurring periods of time. The records of a day will help us to go toward the result we are now searching for."

Effie sat down and he drew a chair in front of his wife and daughter.

"Take yesterday, for instance," said her father, "how was it spent? You rose at seven, I think."

"Yes, sir, I came down just as the breakfast bell rung."

"How was it after breakfast? How was the morning spent?"

"I practiced on the piano an hour after breakfast."

"So far so good. What then?"

"I read the Cavalier until 11 o'clock."

Mr. Thornton shook his head, and then asked:

"After eleven o'clock how was the time spent?"

"I dressed myself and went out."

"At what time did you go out?"

"At twelve o'clock."

"An hour was spent in dressing?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where did you go?"

"And came home just in time for dinner, I think I met you at the door?"

"Yes, Sir."

"I slept from three to five, took a bath and dressed myself. From six until tea time I sat at the parlor window."

"And after tea?"

"Read the Cavalier till I went to bed."

"At what hour?"

"Eleven o'clock."

"Now we can make up the account," said Mr. Thornton. "You rose at seven and retired at eleven. Sixteen hours, and from your own account of the day, but a single hour was spent in anything useful—that was the hour at the piano. Now your mother was up at half past five, and went to bed from sheer inability to sit at her work any longer, at half past nine. Sixteen hours for her also. How much reading did you do in that time?"

And Mr. Thornton looked at his wife.

"Reading?—don't talk to me of reading! I've no time to read."

Mrs. Thornton answered a little impatiently. The contrast of her daughter's idle hours with her own life of exhausting toil did not affect her very pleasantly.

"And yet, said Mr. Thornton, you were very fond of reading, and I remember the time when not a day passed, without an hour or two of reading. Did you not lie down after dinner?"

"Of course not."

There was no reply.

"Now the case is a very plain one, continued Mr. Thornton. In fact nothing could be plainer. You spend from fourteen to sixteen hours daily in hard work, while Effie, taking yesterday as an example, spends the same in what is little better than idleness. Suppose a new adjustment were to take place, and Effie were to be usefully employed in helping you for eight hours of each day, she would have eight hours left for self-improvement and recreation, and you might get back a portion of the health of which these too heavy household duties have robbed you."

"Father!" said Effie, speaking through tears that were falling over her face, "I never saw things in this light. Why haven't you talked to me before! I've often felt as if I'd like to help mother. But she never gives me anything to do, and if I offer to help her, she says, you can't do it, or I'd rather do it myself. Indeed, it isn't all my fault!"

"It may not have been in the past Effie," replied Mr. Thornton, "but it certainly will be in the future, unless there is a new arrangement of things. It is a false social sentiment that lets daughters become idlers while mothers, fathers, and sons take up the daily burden of work, and bear it thro' all the busy hours."

Mrs. T. did not readily come into the new order of things proposed by her husband and accepted by Effie. False pride in her daughter, that future lady ideal, and an inclination rather to do herself than to teach another, were all so many impediments. But Effie and her father were both in earnest, and it was not long before the overtaxed mother's weary face began to lose its look of weariness and her languid frame to come up to an erecter bearing.

She could find time for the old pleasure in books, now and then for a healthful walk in the street, and a call on some valuable friend.

And was Effie the worse for the change? Did the burden she was sharing with her mother depress her shoulders, and take the lightness from her step? Not so. The languor engendered by idleness, which had begun to show itself, disappeared in a few weeks. The color came warmer into her cheeks, her eyes gained in brightness. She was growing in fact more beautiful, for a mind cheerfully conscious of duty was moulding every lineament of her countenance into a new expression.

Did self-improvement stop? O, no!—From one to two hours were given to close practice at the piano every day. Her mind, becoming vigorous in tone, instead of enervated by idleness, chose a better order of reading than had been indulged before, and she was growing towards a thoughtful, intelligent womanhood. She also found time amidst her home duties, for an hour twice a week with a German teacher, and she began also to cultivate a taste for drawing. Now that she was employing her hours usefully, it seemed wonderful how much time she found at her disposal for useful work.

How cheerful and companionable she grew! She did not seem like the Effie Thornton of a few months before. In fact the sphere of the entire household changed. As an idler, Effie had been a burden to all the rest, and the weight of that burden had been sufficient to depress, through weariness, the spirits of all. But now that she was standing up self-sustained, but a sharer in the burdens of each, all hearts came back to a lighter measure, beating rythmically and in conscious enjoyment.

Forever float that standard sheet!
Where breathes the foe but falls before us?
With Freedom's soil beneath our feet,
And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

Is this Abolitionism?

We hear a good deal, now-a-days, about abolitionism, and Mr. Lovejoy of Illinois is denounced as an arch-fiend of that fearful heresy. Let us hear what this monster says. We find in the Chicago Journal the following report of the proceedings of a congressional caucus in which Mr. Lovejoy was a principal speaker:

The second caucus of the republican members of congress was more largely attended than the first one. Nearly all the speakers were in favor of the confiscation of the property of rebels and the emancipation of their slaves. The theory of the more radical congressmen is, that slavery is the rebellion. It is slavery that has marshalled the rebel army and breathes into embattled ranks its hatred of freedom. It speaks in the word of command and sounds in the morning drum-beat. While the fields of the south are being cultivated by the labor of slaves, the white rebel is digging trenches, building fortifications and pointing the cannon at the national capitol. As the master works at rebellion, the doomed African is toiling for and succoring those who are now battling for his enslavement. They maintain that the derangement of business, the increased taxes which the north must bear and the losses it must suffer, are chargeable solely to slavery, and that it is a military necessity—an act of self defence to abolish it.

This is the position of Mr. Lovejoy, and yet it is but justice to say that he is willing to stop a little short of this. At the caucus on Wednesday evening, he said, in substance, that he was willing to support the administration, whether he deemed all the measures wise or unwise. That if it had been in his power to inaugurate civil war, and could he have foreseen that the overthrow of slavery would have been the result of that war, he would not have done it. It was, therefore, unfair, he said, to charge upon any portion of the republican party that their purpose in carrying on war is to abolish slavery; but if, in putting down the rebellion, slavery is destroyed, he should not grieve. At present he was content to confiscate the property and liberate the slaves of the rebels.

A proposition of this kind will secure a majority in the house, coupled as it will probably be, with a provision to fully compensate loyal masters for the losses they may sustain.

THE RIGHT MAN IN THE RIGHT PLACE.—It turns out that the editor of the Toronto Leader, whose ferocious attacks on our government have given it notoriety, is named George Sheppard, who was late editor of the Washington Republic, late sub editor of the Washington Constitution, late agent of the "Breckinridge Central Committee," late secession writer at Richmond. Could a more appropriate tool be found for the nature of the work assigned him?

The abolition friends of Gen. Phelps explain his silly proclamation from Ship Island on the ground that he is insane. We suspect that all abolitionists are insane.—That's the way we account for it.—Madison Patriot.

On this hypothesis, the Patriot had a very severe attack of lunacy on the 25th of last April. We fear it has not yet recovered, though the disease has assumed a new form of manifestation.

☞ We find in the Cincinnati Gazette several telegraphic items (dated 24th) from its special Washington correspondent not sent in the report of the associated press:

Secretary Cameron sent to-day three hundred soldiers armed and equipped for the winter from Detroit, to guard the great locks of the Saut Ste. Marie.

The three largest foundries in the country—that at Pittsburg, Alger's at South Boston, and the West Point—have been ordered to manufacture, within the next twelve months, all the ten inch columbiads they can, estimated at eighteen hundred. Guns have been ordered from Fortress Monroe to Portland.

All of Fremont's officers actually in service will be paid.

A spy attached to McCall's division counted one hundred and sixty graves of the rebels, who fell in the late fight, and were buried by the citizens of Drainsville.

Lieut. Col. Windham of the Sardinian army, distinguished in Garibaldi's campaign, has offered his services and been made major of a Wisconsin regiment.

V. B. Corbett, a publisher of a well known map of the seat of war, was arrested in McCall's camp to-day as a spy. He was put, by the provost marshal, on parole till trial.

The militia law of Virginia is so altered as to subject to draft only those between twenty-one and thirty-one years old.

PARSON BROWNLOW.—A refugee from Eastern Tennessee, who reached Cincinnati on Friday last, gave some information touching the whereabouts of Parson Brownlow. It seems that the Parson was given, by the rebels, the alternative of leaving the south or going to prison. He accepted the former. The permit was granted, and the necessary arrangements to leave were being made, when by some treacherous proceeding he was imprisoned, and it is supposed was sent to Alabama, where he now is, unless Gen. Crittenden has had the manliness to make amends for the breach of promise.

After the battle of Belmont, a man, with both legs nearly shot off, was found in the woods singing the "Star Spangled Banner." But for this circumstance, the surgeons would not have discovered him.

More About the Railroad Bribes.

"Outsider" writes another letter to the Wisconsin, in which he exculpates Col. Paine of the 4th regiment, and Col. Hamilton of the 3d, from the charge of taking money from railroad companies, and allows Col. Cutler of the 6th to make a "modification." The authority for the charges in question is testimony before Van Wyck's investigating committee, and until the report of the committee is published and the exact testimony is known, it is no more than justice to the persons implicated to suspend judgment.

"Outsider" adds some items of general interest to Wisconsin readers. He says:

Carlisle Boyd, who figured rather conspicuously in the Burch divorce case, has turned up as a captain of a company in the 5th New York, formerly "Duryea's Zouaves." Major Fred S. Boardman of the 4th Wisconsin, hearing Boyd's name mentioned by some ladies, remarked that he did not think him a fit man to associate with respectable ladies, which remark was repeated to Boyd, who thereupon came with two friends (their camps being adjoining) to see our major. On being asked if he had made such a remark about Capt. Boyd, Fred replied that he did not know he was the man, but if he was, it was true, and he reiterated it, adding that he was prepared to make his words good any time. Boyd and his friends retired very quietly, for Fred was evidently too plucky for them. On Thursday Boyd came over to Major Boardman's tent, dressed in citizen's clothes, accompanied by two friends, and waited for the major, who was absent. When Fred returned and got near Boyd, the latter struck at him, but did not do much execution, when Fred took Mr. Boyd down and gave him a good sound thrashing. Major Boardman had on his overcoat, and was taken entirely unawares. Boyd went after wool, but got shorn himself. The conduct of Major Boardman was that of a soldier and a gentleman.

Decidedly a lion here now is Col. J. H. Mansfield, of Delevan, Wis., aid to the governor, agent for the state of Wisconsin, etc., etc. If gentlemen want to see our army across the Potomac, let it be known to Col. Mansfield and, presto, all obstacles vanish. I heard at Willard's on Friday evening, one gentleman say to another, "I have been over the river and saw all the sights to day." "How did you get a pass?" was the reply. "Oh, I did not have any; Col. Mansfield of Wisconsin took over a party—went over at the government ferry, to the exclusion of government wagons, which had to wait, and came back in the same way. Great man, Col. Mansfield! has charge of all the regiments from Wisconsin." I ascertained that the gentlemen thus conversing were from New York.—The next question arises, "Who pays the expenses?" Wisconsin men, army officers, assure me that "Mansfield has the run of the departments; if you want anything done go to him, for he can get a pass when we cannot."

Bradford Rixford, of Oshkosh, has a first class clerkship in the department of the interior. Rixford was a Lincoln elector in Wisconsin, and I am glad to say the appointment is worthily bestowed.

The popular and accomplished sergeant-at-arms of the last assembly of Wisconsin, C. A. Beebe, of Beaver Dam, is assistant postmaster of the house of representatives, and is already as popular here as he was in Wisconsin.

Byron Kilbourn is here trying to get some law passed to have his claim connected with the old canal grant settled. I met Senator Phillips of Fond du Lac on the Avenue on Thursday. I saw Gen. King and staff here; they all look well, and the general is very popular with the army.

"OLD VIRGINIA"—A RETROGRADE MOVEMENT.—A Richmond paper gives a synopsis of an important portion of the amended constitution of Virginia. It will be seen that it withdraws power from the many, and places it in the hands of the few:

"Members of the assembly elected annually instead of biennally, and to meet annually instead of biennially.

"The present board of public works to be abolished, and a new one to be established. All the district courts are to be abolished, and the judges of the appellate and circuit courts are to be elected by the general assembly, instead of by the qualified voters as at present. The said judges are to hold office during good behavior, and until they attain the age of —— years.

"Clerks and attorneys for the state are to be appointed by the courts, and not elected by the people. The attorney general to be appointed by the general assembly, instead of elected by the people as at present, for a term of years.

"Only the mayor, aldermen, and members of the councils—cities and town—to be elected by the people.

"Commissioned officers, soldiers, seamen, or marines in the regular army (instead of 'service in the confederate states') to be excluded from the right of suffrage. The object of this amendment is to reserve the right of voting to volunteers in the service.

"The general enactment to prohibit the future emancipation of slaves excludes the provision requiring a moiety of the capitation tax upon white persons to be applied to the purposes of education in primary schools."

GOOD IDEA.—By a recent act of the legislature of Vermont, similar to that already adopted in other states, all banks are required to brand with a stamp or pen, every counterfeit or altered bill which is offered them in payment or deposit. If this act is properly obeyed it will be a great safeguard to the public, as it will stop the passage of spurious bills from one person to another after they have been offered to the banks. A great amount of this kind of fraud has been practiced by men pretending to be honest.—Chicago Journal.

ARREST FOR EMBEZZLEMENT.—John Hogan, late postmaster at St. Louis, was arrested in that city on Saturday by Charles Noyes, special agent of the post office department, charged with embezzling from the department several thousand dollars during his term of office. It is charged that upon the expiration of his term of office he removed all books belonging to the post office in which his accounts were kept, by which removal the department was deprived of the opportunity of an investigation of his accounts. By some means Mr. Noyes obtained possession of the books, and upon investigation the arrest was made. Mr. Hogan was held to bail in the sum of $10,000 bonds. We are without particulars, and as the whole charge may be susceptible of explanation by the late postmaster, he should not be condemned before a hearing is had. St. Louis Republican.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent states that new muskets and rifles of the best quality are now coming in fast. The government will be in receipt of at least one hundred and sixty thousand of the best quality of arms in the next sixty days, and by the first of January all the manufactories in the north will begin to deliver to the government, and afterwards will supply the wants of the army of the United States, if it was double the present number. This will close up business with the agents of foreign speculators.

BY TELEGRAPH.

REPORTED FOR THE DAILY GAZETTE.

Last Night's Report.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.

SENATE.—On motion of Mr. Hale, it was agreed that when the senate adjourn to-day it be to meet on Monday next, and when the senate meet on that day it adjourn to meet next Thursday.

Mr. Grimes presented a petition from citizens of Iowa for the introduction of the Homeopathic system of practice in the army.

Mr. Hale offered a resolution that the president be requested, if not incompatible with the public interest, to transmit copies of all despatches which have passed between this country and Great Britain, relative to the seizure of Mason and Slidell. Said despatches to be communicated in either open or executive session, as may be deemed proper.

Mr. Sumner objected.

Mr. Hale said he had understood from the public press, and those who held more intimate relations with the administration than himself, (though the absence of the intimacy was not his fault, as he was willing to be as confidential as anybody,) that for three or four days past the cabinet has had under consideration, a propisition, fraught with more evil to the country than anything that had yet marked its history, and that was the surrender of Mason and Slidell to Great Britain. By doing this, we would yield all that we had gained in the war of the revolution, and be humiliated to a second-rate power. No man would go farther than himself for peace, but he would not submit to national disgrace and dishonor, to obtain such a peace.

He would favor the arbitration of another power, but if a demand has been made by Great Britian for the surrender of Mason and Slidell, war should be declared against her instantly. He would make all honorable concessions for peace, but a peace involving such a surrender, would be infinitely worse than war. His friend from Indiana, Mr. Lane, had remarked this morning, that his state has now 60,000 men in the field, and would double that number to maintain the national honor.—If this senate should go home, after such a surrender and humiliation, it would be subjected to the scorn and indignation of the country. He remarked that the arrogant demand of England is a pretext for war; she was determined to humilitate first and and fight us afterwards. Let our cities and villages be pillaged and burned, but let our national honor be preserved. Francis the 1st said, after the battle of Pavia, that all was lost but honor. He, Mr. Hale, would pray that this administration might not sacrifice our national honor; thousands would yet come to the field to defend it.—If this surrender was made the administration would meet with such a fire in the rear, that it would be hurled from power. If we had a war with England, it would be for the same cause that had sent one king to the block and another homeless and houseless over the world, and one that would appeal to men wherever the English language was spoken.

He believed, too, that if Napoleon had one desire, more than another, it was to wipe out the stain upon the French arms at Waterloo. All over Canada there were thousand of Irishmen who would rush to arms to sustain such a cause as ours. Our principles were our great strength, and if war must come he would say, let it come, and thank God that we are the instrument in his hands to work out his own cause.

Mr. Sumner said his own belief was that the matter would be amicably adjusted. It was in safe hands, and it would be better for the senate to reserve themselves for facts and not act upon rumors.

Mr. Hale's resolution was laid over under the rules.

Mr. Davis gave notice that he should introduce a bill confiscating every species of property of all persons who had any connection with the southern rebellion, either in civil, military or naval capacity.

Mr. Harlan introduced a bill for establishing provisional governments in all the seceded states. Referred.

Mr. Howe introduced a bill amending the fugitive slave act. Referred. Adjourned till Monday.

HALIFAX, Dec. 26.

The Niagara has £20,000 in specie, and 351 troops for Halifax.

The steamship Australian, which left Liverpool with 1265 troops, a field battery, large quantities of ammunition stores, sledges, &c., for North America, also arrived at Halifax, this morning.

The West India mail has taken to England news of the escape of the Sumter from Martinique; also that on the 28th of November, the Sumter captured the American ship Montmoreny, from Newport, England, with coal for the St. Lawrence, but released her on receipt of a bond, by the captain, promising to pay $26,000, three months after peace was proclaimed.

The British war vessel Cadmus has arrived off St. Thomas, to protect vessels against another Trent affair.

GREAT BRITAIN.—The attitude and preparations by England, show no change.

The London Times, editorially, reports the following story:—During the visit of the Prince of Wales to America, Mr. Seward took advantage of an entertainment to the Prince, to tell the Duke of New Castle, he was likely to occupy a high office; that when he did so, it would become his duty to insult England, and he should insult her accordingly.

The Times accumulates evidence of a long cherished intention, on the part of Mr. Seward, to do England an injury.

In another leader on international affairs the the Times advises the federal government to make peace in time, before it is committed to a triple war, viz: the confederates, the British and its own abolitionists.

A telegram from Brussels, of the 12th, to the Times, says there is a rumor in diplomatic circles, that mediation in the American conflict, will be offered by King Leopold.

The Morning Post says there is no truth in the rumor that Gen. Scott's return home was the theme of much speculation. It was generally reported that he had some sort of mission from the French government to the Washington cabinet. The Herald's Paris correspondent says he had a long interview with M. Thovenal before his departure.

To-Day's Report.

[Reported Exclusively for the Daily Gazette.]

MORNING DESPATCHES.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 15.

COMMERCIAL PER STEAMER.—Breadstuffs, flour quiet but steady at 30sa34s. Wheat steady.

LONDON, Dec. 14.

Baring's circular reports wheat dull and 1d lower. Flour steady.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 14.

VERY LATEST.—Breadstuffs quiet but steady, provisions firm.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.

Tribune's correspondence.—The statement of a Mr. Hurd concerning the escape of Col. Corcoran, published in the New York Times of Wednesday morning, is a romantic fabie; at least, so far as it relates to the asserted arrival at Fortress Monroe, under a flag of truce, of the man Hurd. No such person has been heard of there.—It is probable that the entire story is a fiction.

General Scott arrived by the steamship Arago, last evening. He has not yet communicated anything in reference to the cause of his hasty return from Europe. Whatever communication he intended for the immediate use of the government was dispatched on his arrival. He looks more cheerful and less care-worn than when he left the country a few weeks ago.

Mr. Ely reached this city last evening.

Dr. Marcer, brother of Gen. Marcer, reached here to-day, having come on expressly from New York city to attend Gen. McClellan and his chief of staff, who have been confined to their beds for several days. They are both getting along well, and Gen. McClellan will be in his saddle by Saturday or Monday next.

Adjutant Thomas urged upon the president the justice of reorganizing Col. Mulligan's regiment and Col. Marshall's 14th Ill. cavalry, which were captured at Lexington. His representations prevailed.—The officers and men are restored to their commissions and pay, and will again take the field in Missouri.

The financial bill which the committee of ways and means is preparing, will, it is believed, create large demands for United States stocks to be used for banking purposes.—The bills issued on a hypothecation of those stocks will have the faith of the government pledged to that extent for their redemption, that these bills are to be receivable for taxes and all other public dues to the government, and also all salaries and other debts and demands from the United States for services rendered, and for material and supplies furnished.

Mr. Stanton, brother of F. P. Stanton of Kansas, has been arrested for complicity with the rebellion in Tennessee. He has taken the oath of allegiance and has been released from Fort Lafayette.

Letters received here trom Havana state that two rebel steamers the Thedosia and the Isabel were there. She was some days ago at Nassua coaling, by permission of her majesty's vessels at the government yard. The same letter states that our own vessels were not permitted to coal from our own ships at that point. Inquiry has been instituted to know whether such is the fact.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.

A letter has been received from Arch Bishop Hughes, stating that his health has been greatly improved by his voyage.

News by the Arago confirms the report that Prince Napoleon has exercised an influence favorable to this country, since his return to France.

The London Times' Paris correspondent states distinctly that the Emperor and his ministers have made up their minds to countenance the southern confederacy even to the extent of recognizing it an early day, but have so far been prevented from making their feelings known to the press and nation, through the influence of Prince Napoleon. It is said he is preparing a speech for delivery in the French senate, taking a northern view of our international troubles.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.

Herald correspondence.—The cabinet at Washington had a long consultation yesterday, on the affair of the arrest of Mason and Slidell. Although the proceedings are necessarily withheld from the public, we have good reason to believe that the conviction has been come to, that the belligerent attitude assumed by the English government on this question, arose from the fact that the despatches conveyed by the Trent under the charge of Mason and Slidell, tendered to Great Britain a protectorate over the southern states, and if necessary, to make them a British colonial possession. It is stated on high authority that the whole matter, so far as has been developed, will be laid before the public in a few days, without reservation, although the final decision of the government will be reserved until the arrival of Gen. Scott at Washington, which he will probably reach to-night.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.

The rebel schooner Fashion was captured by the sloop-of-war Ethan Allen, Nov. 25th, and sent to Key West.

AFTERNOON DESPATCHES.

FORT MONROE, Dec. 26.

A flag of truce took an immense quantity of clothing to Norfolk this afternoon, destined for the federal prisoners south.

The gunboat Key Stone State arrived here this forenoon from Bermuda. She has been in pursuit of the pirate Sumter, but has not seen her.

The brig Empire from Boston via Newport, arrived here this afternoon. She has an assorted cargo of apples, preserved meats and such articles, destined for Port Royal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.

The President has approved the bill to increase the duties on tea, coffee and sugar.

Judge Arney has arrived from New Mexico, bringing dispatches from the federal army in New Mexico to the government.—He reports a strong Union feeling in the territory. Col. Canby, in command of the military department of New Mexico, has retaken forts Craig and Staunton, on the Mesilla border, driving the Texans away, and was at the latest dates enroute for Fort Fillmore, to dispossess the enemy there, that post having been traitorously surrendered by Col. Lynde to an inferior force of Texans. Thence he intends marching into Arizona to drive off the rebels, having sufficient force. There can be no doubt of his success. The Indians for the greater part, are peaceable and friendly to the government.

Judge Arney, on the way hither, passed on the Big Bend of the Arkansas the camps of the confederate tribes of the plains, consisting of about 6,000 Arapahoes, Kiowas, Comanches, Cheynes and Prairie Apaches. They desired him to say, when he reached Washington, that they would fight for the great father, the defender of the Union.

Gov. Connally has recommended to the legislative assembly the repeal of the slave code, enacted two years ago, and from the tone of public feeling an act for that purpose will be passed.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.

Schooner Olive Branch, from Boston, at Auxcayes, reports having been chased by a brig showing British colors, saw a great number of men on her decks and supposed her to be a privateer.

The Markets.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.

Flour quiet without important change; sales 5,600 bbls. at 5,25a5,40 super western, 5,50a5,75 common to medium ex. western. Wheat receipts 6,980 bush., market quiet, steady and unchanged; sales trifling.

MILITARY ITEMS.—Commissions have been issued

To Lewis M. B. Smith as captain, and to J. M. Comstock and Wm. S. Cooper as lieutenants company H, 1st cavalry.

To Edwin F. Brooks as lieutenant and battalion adjutant of the 2d battalion, 2d cavalry regiment.

To Joseph S. Lane, M. D., as 2d assistant surgeon of the 2d cavalry.

The Defence of Canada.

The Canadian papers, in anticipation of war between the United States and England and the invasion of Canada by federal troops, are canvassing the condition of the defences of the colonies. The Toronto Globe quotes from a military work by Gen. Halleck now commanding in Missouri, in which it is argued that Lake Champlain affords the best military route by which an attack can be made upon Canada. The Globe then continues:

"There is but little doubt he (Gen. Halleck) is right in indicating the Lake Champlain route as the most direct line of operation by which an attack can be made on Canada. It is the shortest route, and it would, if successful, cut off the communication of the western part of the province with Great Britian. It has this grave fault, however: while Quebec remains in our possession, an invading army in Montreal would run great danger of having its communication interfered with by an advance from the fortress in a southwesterly direction. We do not profess to have any tactical knowledge, but such, it appears to us, would be a likely result.

"One reason why the possession of the Montreal district is of great importance arises from the fact that, while we have it, we also have Ottowa river and Rideau canal under our control. The southern bank of the St. Lawrence, from opposite Cornwall and upwards, is American territory.—This places it in the power of our neighbors to blockade the river, or at any rate to render its passage very difficult. We can, however, to a very great extent, curtail the advantages they may gain there, by using the Ottawa and Rideau canal, the entrance of which latter into Lake Ontario is easily defended by the fort at Kingston. Montreal is not easily to be taken. There is a strong battery on St. Helen's Island, and the heights behind the city afford a means of defence which the people will know how to use. Any quantity of labor can be procured to throw up whatever entrenchments may be considered necessary by the military engineers. Quebec has doubtless a good store of cannon which can be forwarded by the Grand Trunk railway, and men will not be wanting to handle them. Before the weather renders it possible for the Americans to advance northward, every gun ought to have enough skilled artillerymen to put it to the most effective use.

"The Duke of Wellington has recorded it as his opinion that, unless we retain possession of Lakes Champlain, Ontario, and Erie, the best laid plans for the defence of the province may fail. Upon this Sir Archibald Alison remarks: 'The two great discomfitures sustained by us during the last war—the defeat of Proctor at the Moravian village and the retreat of Prevost from Plattsburgh—were the immediate consequences of the disasters on Lakes Erie and Champlain. The movement of Chauncey gained the ascendancy on Lake Ontario.—Toronto was taken, and the serious invasion, arrested only by the heroism at Chippewa, was commenced. Knowing then where the danger lies, and where the means of averting it are to be found, it is the duty of the British government to be ready at a moment's warning to equip or prepare a formidable naval force on Champlain, Erie and Ontario. What can be done at this season of the year to place a fleet of gunboats on Lake Champlain, we leave it to our friends below to say. We have very considerable facilities for the western lakes. Kingston is fortified sufficiently to resist any attack the Americans can make, and, under cover of the guns, before spring opens we might have boats enough, which, with those we shall receive from England, would sweep everything before them on Lake Ontario. Of course we should have to make great exertions. But upon our naval supremacy everything depends. The ship-yards of Quebec afford an ample supply of skilled labor, to say nothing of our lake builders at Kingston, Toronto, Oakville, St. Catharines, Collingwood, and elsewhere.—Collingwood has already been marked out for a naval depot on Lake Huron. It will be necessary to fortify it strongly. This can soon be done, and ship-building commenced. Port Stanley and the Rondeau are important points on Lake Erie for ship-building, but if the Welland Canal is well guarded it will enable us to pass vessels of considerable size through from Lake Ontario. We may depend upon it that, if there is to be war, there will be such a turning out of gunboats in British ship-yards as was never seen before. What can be done that way was shown during the Crimean business. The 21 gun-boats mentioned by the Times as ready were built on that occasion, and we believe are small enough to pass our locks. Many others laid up in sheds at Plymouth can be launched in a few hours—they are perhaps in the harbor now—and will be available for lake and river defence.

"We believe previous experience in hard-fought campaigns proves that, the lake being safe, Toronto, Hamilton, and other points are to be best defended on the Niagara frontier. Troops must be concentrated at some point or points in the peninsula, from which they can most readily be thrown either towards Niagara, or Sarnia and Windsor.—Our extensive railway system affords us every facility for moving troops. If Toronto and London are selected as the points d'appui, we can readily meet the enemy at any point he may threaten. If, indeed, an attack from the lake be made impossible by the presence of a fleet, Toronto is in no danger, for the enemy would not dare to advance overland from Niagara, with the certainty that we could cut off his communication. On the possession of the lakes, we repeat, everything depends.

"We are not able to furnish our readers with a statement of the number of guns, of shot and shell, or of barrels of powder immediately available. Our military authorities are in the habit of keeping the knowledge of these things to themselves. A correspondent of the New York Herald recently visited Quebec, but could make nothing out, except that the fortress was strong!—Many of our readers were doubtless surprised to hear that twenty-five thousand Minie rifles had been placed at the disposal of the provincial government the other day, exclusive of those already in the hands of the volunteers. How many more there are stored away in that mysterious fortress at Quebec, it is difficult to say."

THE NEGRO CODE OF THE DISTRICT.—In the District of Columbia the barbarous old black code of Maryland is said to be still in force. Among the laws is the following act, passed in 1720:

"When any negro or other slave shall be convicted, by confession or verdict of a jury, of any pettit treason, or murder, or willfully burning of dwelling houses, it shall be lawful for the justices before whom such conviction shall be, to give judgment against such negro or other slave, to have the right hand cut off, to be hanged in the usual manner, the head severed from the body, the body divided into four quarters, the head and quarters set up in the most public places of the county where such act was committed."

Two Russian officers in Warsaw, Count Lamber and Gen. Gerstenweig, recently got into a duel; but as a duel at that time between two high personages presented great inconveniencies, the belligerents decided that one of the two should kill himself the same evening, and that lots should be drawn to decide which it should be.—The lot fell on Gen. Gerstenwieg, who accordingly shot himself through the head as per agreement.

SOUTHERN ITEMS.—Memphis papers as late as the 20th, have reached the office of the St. Louis Republican. They are filled with accounts of thefts, highway robberies, and other private outrages, the natural results of the political misdeeds of the rebel politician. A gang of ruffians said to number nearly five hundred persons, is prowling about the streets of Memphis, and 24 hours rarely pass without unpleasant evidence of its presence.

The amount of sequestered property in Memphis alone has thus far reached $2,500,000, and this is thought to be only about one-half of the northern property in that city.

The cost of taking the New Orleans floating battery up the river to Columbus was $120,000. Every time it was hauled to be coaled it cost $10,000.

At Boudon, Talladega county, Ala., two or three hundred weight of sulphur is turned out daily from a bed of sulphuret of iron.

A rebel government steamer recently stopped at Napoleon, Ark., early in the morning, and commenced hauling citizens from their bed to join the service. The people were very angry, but could not help themselves.

CURE FOR FROSTED FEET.—It is said that frozen feet can be speedily and certainly cured by being bathed and well rubbed with kerosene or coal oil, for a few times at night before retiring to bed. Several persons have already tried it, all of whom unite in pronouncing it an effectual cure, which, if they are correct, is an easy and cheap mode of getting rid of a very sore, troublesome affliction. Those who have tried it say that the feet should be well warmed by a hot stove during and after the application of the oil, and it will certainly effect a speedy cure. Persons suffering from the pain of frosted feet will no doubt do well in giving it a trial, for it is surely a very cheap ointment, and one that is very easily applied.

LIBRARY FOR THE 13TH REGIMENT.—We have the pleasure of saying to our friends that our chest is full; many and sincere thanks to all who aided us in the matter.—We have quite a number of duplicates of works donated to us which we propose to hand over to Col. Barstow's regiment when suitable arrangements are made to receive and properly circulate them. We are told that suitable reading is one of the great wants of our volunteer army. Let the 3d cavalry be generously supplied.

BRYANT & STRATTON'S GREAT CHAIN OF COMMERCIAL COLLEGES.—It affords us pleasure to announce to the public that this great "Chain of Business Colleges" is still expanding. By request of the citizens of Brooklyn, Messrs. Bryant & Stratton have recently opened a college in Troy, New York, which is the tenth college in the chain. These institutions are all opened with a view to permanence, as well as thoroughness in instruction. Large eligible rooms are selected and fitted up at a great outlay with all the modern improvements. It is well known that a large number of smaller institutions of this character have been obliged to close up during the past year for want of patronage. The National Chain seem to outride the storm and enjoy a good degree of prosperity. Messrs. Bryant & Stratton are preparing a full series of Commercial Text Books. Four of these books are now completed and ready for use, viz:—Commercial Law, 560 pages, price $2.50; Commercial Arithmetic, 332 pages, price $1.25; Book-Keeping, 216 pages, price $1.75; Primary Book-Keeping, 196 pages, price 75 cents. We take pleasure in presenting the claims of these colleges, and also of these books, knowing that they are of sterling value and worthy of recommendation.

FOR SILVER SPOONS AND FORKS, call on de11d1m WEBB & LEE.

For the Daily Gazette.

We are happy to announce to our citizens that our old, esteemed and amusing friend, J. B. Chambers, is again in town. Notwithstanding his great powers as a statesman, he considers his duty to his country, in her hour of trial, as paramount to all besides, and has accepted an appointment in the army, and having received orders to join his regiment in a few days, he proposes to sell at auction his magnificent stock of jewelry and watches, at the store of Chas. Pulker, on Milwaukee street. We need not remind our friends that this will be a good opportunity to secure New Year's gifts at their own prices.

A COINCIDENCE.—The Pittsburg Despatch says:

At the very spot where Col. Geary was cannonading the other day, at Point of Rocks, he was operating a few years since as master iron manufacturer. A friend thinks it extremely probable that the "houses shelled near the Old Furnace" were erected by Col. Geary some years ago. He had extensive iron works there, on both sides of the river, and is familiar with every inch of the ground.

To Our Debtors.

It will be seen by a notice in another column, that on the first of January next there will be a change in the proprietorship of the Gazette. The NECESSITY of a settlement of ALL our accounts will be apparent to all who will give the subject their attention, and as our own convenience will be materially promoted by a settlement before the dissolution of the partnership, and the interest of no debtor will be injured by doing in season what must come at last, we hope there will be no request or attempt at delay. Mr. Wilcox will devote his time to this matter, and as there are a large number of persons to settle with, let each one be prepared when called on. No one will be turned out of the office if he calls here for that purpose.

CAN THE REBELS SAVE THEIR BACON?—Next to the absorbing questions of peace or war between the northern states and Great Britain, and at the point or points at which the Union forces are likely to strike next, appears to be the problem of saving their bacon. Although it may not, at first, seem to be a very difficult one to solve, the presentation of a few facts on the subject will probably place it in a different light. According to the census statistics of 1850, it was estimated that there were no less than sixteen million hogs in the rebel states, and that about four million are killed each winter. Now, to corn this pork twenty-five thousand tons of salt are needed, and this amount will be required during the next four or five weeks, which may be considered to embrace the entire winter season in the south. The trouble which presents itself to the rebels in the matter is, where is the salt to come from? According to late accounts from New Orleans, Charleston, Mobile, and other southern cities, salt commanded almost fabulous prices, and that it was scarcely attainable at any rate. The scarcity of salt will be found to be a grave matter before the end of the following year, if it is not forthcoming and fully distributed to meet the demand. Neither the men in the army nor the slaves on the plantations can dispense with this necessary article of food.

A NEPHEW OF JEFF. DAVIS IN THE UNION SERVICE.—The Journal says that among Capt. Read's Rifle Rangers, who joined Gen. Butler's expedition, is a nephew of Jeff. Davis. He is a refugee from the south, his property having been confiscated on account of his Union sentiments. He has a brother captain of the marines on the privateer Sumter, a second commanding a company of Louisana Zouaves, and a third a private in the same company. Mr. Bennthusan, the person alluded to, now of Capt. Read's squadron, has been filling the position of quartermaster in Berdan's regiment of Sharpshooters at Washington.

SHALL WE SUFFER FOR SALTPETER?—Some uneasiness has been created here by the announcement in recent English papers that large quantities of saltpetre bought in England for account of our government have been stopped. We are able to say on the highest authority, that this step cannot in the least embarrass us. The government has on hand now an immense supply of this necessary article, most of which has been in store since the war of 1812. The am't of saltpetre now in government stores is, we are assured, sufficient for all emergencies.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

AN "ABLE AND GALLANT" OFFICER.—The St. Louis Democrat says the following is an extract of a private letter from a soldier. It is not necessary to name the colonel.—If any of the authorities wish to know his name it can be furnished:

"When we commenced marching on Saturday last, our colonel was so drunk that he could scarcely get on his horse. The next day he sent the sergeant major back for four gallons of whiskey, and the day following on a similar errand. All he thinks about is whiskey. He is a good drill officer, as he was connected with the regular army for twenty years; but I think he has been drunk every night since he has been in camp. He is pretty noisy when in this condition, and seldom utters a word without a curse. When at the Gasconade river, our captain asked him if he had heard any news, when he turned round and asked him 'what in hell he asked questions for—was it any of his business?'"

☞ The Jefferson Republican says there are evidences that there is an organized band of horse thieves in the state, and warns its readers to "shut their barn doors."

California editors apprehend considerable difficulty in working the telegraph to the eastern states in the winter months. One paper says:

"Thus far, the storms in the mountains have seriously retarded communication with the east—whether owing to the chill and density of the atmosphere or the insulation of the wires in ice, we are not informed."

A POLICY.—The boys of our village have a military organization composed of "loyal men." The penalty for any one who plays the rebel, is that he receive three pinches anywhere on his body, four kicks anywhere excepting the head, and four clips with the fist wherever they can hit him. We suggest the above "policy" to Uncle Sam.—Wouldn't it be better than swearing in?—Wood Co. Reporter.
